Their Views on the All-Absorbing Tariff Question.

TURNER. CLEMENTS AND CANDLER Make Remarks in Support of the Mills Bill—The President's Veto of Public Building Bills—Other Gossip.

WASHINGTON, May 10 .- [Special.] -The ways and means committee did not meet today and none of the many amendments offered last night have yet been considered. A number of the amendments offered may be accepted, but all that propose a radical change in the bill will undoubtedly be referred as soon as the committee are ready to report.

Another caucus will be held. There is today some talk about extending the tariff debate until Saturday week. This extension is said to be necessitated by the fact that the number of members who still desire to speak upon the bill cannot secure an opportunity in the time already allotted for the purpose. The matter was broached the caucus last night, and Mr. Springer, who is chairman of the committee of the whole represented the necessity for a prolongation of debate, but no action was taken.

The veto of the Allentown, Penn., public building yesterday, was the subject of much unfavorable criticism of the president in the house today. The public building committee severely criticised Mr. Cleveland and some of them claimed if the bill had been presented to the house this morning, it would have passed over the president's objection. Mr. Sowder is more than indignant and was loud in his de-nunciation of the president. He said in speak-

'I was never so surprised in all my life because when I called to see the president about the bill he answered me that if he found any objections to it he would not act adversely without first sending for me. He not having sent for me I had every reason to believe that he would approve the bill. If the president is honest and consistent he cannot now approve of a single bill for a public building which is only to be used for postal services and the rent is less than $3,000, if the bill carries an appropriation of $100,000. This seems to have been the principle upon which the veto

It was quite a surprise in the house this morning to learn of the defeat of Representa-tive Beriah Wilkins for renomination in the 6th Ohio district. Mr. Wilkins was considered a good representative and even Speaker Carlisle took occasion today to express his regret over the occurrence and his appreciation of Mr. Wilkins's services.

Mr. Thomas F. Miller, a prominent lawyer of this city, and well-known in Atlanta, was today appointed by the president as judge of the district police court.

Mr. Turner, of Georgia, was the first speaker on the tariff question today. His speech was generally considered by the democrats as a good argument, but his friends say he was not at his best. However at its conclusion he was at his best. However at its conclusion he was heartly congratulated by his democratic friends. Many democrats were present, but the republican side and galleries were almost deserted.

MR. TURNER SPEAKS.

Mr. Turner criticized the republican side for not having formulated some bill to revise the tariff in the interest of the people and for having contented itself with an effort to attain the Mills bill and to attain those who were its reputed authors and an effort to defend the general policy of protection. Democrats were asked to defend the bill against the charge of infamy. The question, therefore, was between the pending bill and that abomination of errors known as the tariff act of 1883. It was not secent; it was not becoming the MR. TURNER SPEAKS. nation of errors known as the tariffact of 1883. It was not secent; it was not becoming the manhood of the gentlemen on the other side to complain that the democratic members of the ways and means committee chose to retire among themselves and formulate a bill which they might regard as being in accordance with the recommendations of the chief executive and in accordance with the verdict of the people who elected him to that high office. He had nothing to apologize for and nothing to condone in the action of the committee on ways and means in refusing to give a hearing to outside parties. It had refused to hear speeches, and for one he took his share of the responsibility for that refusal.

speeches, and for one he took his share of the responsibility for that refusal.
"If that is treason make the most of it," It had been said that the zentlemen coming from the old slave states were not capable of dealing with a question which involved the wages of labor. If they were unfit, on account of their incidental relations with slavery, to consider public relations affecting the burden of taxation, why should it not be said, with equal sincerity, that those who brought the Africans over on New England ships could not be entrusted with the task of revising the privileges of a freeman.

Mr. Turner impeached the protection of high crimes and misdemeanors; denied that protection had raised wages in this country; and attributed the difference in the rate of wages here and abroad to the democratic party. Referring to the devastated condition of the southern states after the war, he said that the south had begun to emerge from the scene of wreck and ruin, and begun to feel that desolation was behind it. It was not a new south added to a new union, but it was the old south rehabilitated, added to the union of our fathers. [Applause.]

In the new era, in this better era, which was now near at hand, as one of the representatives of the south, he did not ask the government to now near at hand, as one of the representatives of the south, he did not ask the government to help her. Far from it. But it asked congress and the government in God's name, to take its hands off, and let her ambitions soar.

Mr. Clements closed the afternoon debate with one of the most fluent and eloquent speeches yet made on the tariff issue.

SPEECH OF MR CLEMENTS.

Mr. Clements deprecated the unbusiness-like treatment which the proposition to revise the tariff as a business matter had received from the republican side of the house. The present condition would lead to certain financial panic and disaster. Should the house go on and quibble over who was to do the work of tariff revision, a democratic or republican house in the fare of creek results. panic and disaster. Should the house go on and quibble over who was to do the work of tariff revision, a democratic or republican house, in the face of great peril? Would it not be well to do this thing at once and together as Americans? He asked what protection was doing for labor? The American iron master got his labor as cheaply as he could, even if he had to go into other countries for it; even if he had to employ Pinkerton detectives to keep the laboring men of America from revolting against him. That was a practical illustration of the great sympathy felt for labor. Talk about organized labor being peculiar to the north and not to the south was meaningless. There had risen up in the south today great organizations or federations of farmers. There were labor unions of one kind or another, too. All of them were the outgrowth of the condition in which the American people were placed today under system of taxation. They were not peculiar to one section or another. They were peculiar to the distressing conditions which surrounded the laboring men of this entire country and were only an indication that they were real. to the distressing conditions which surrounded the laboring men of this entire country and were only an indication that they were seeking in this way and in that, in every way, to better their condition. He adjured the gentlemen on the other side to abandon their discussion of the confederate constitution and of slavers, and to deal with this vital question, which concerned the people of the whole country.

Mr. Candler was the third of the Georgia delegation to speak today. His effort was, however, made at tonight's session. He defined his position with marked clearness Mr. Candler said:

Mr. Candler said in brief that he differed from both sides of the house on the question so prominently before it and the country. One side of the house demands a heavy reduction in tariff duties and the perpetuation of the internal revenue system, while a part of the other side demand the repeal of the internal revenue system and the perpetuation of the present tariff. He differed with both, in that he favored the repeal of the internal revenue laws and a revision of the tariff so as to shift the burden of taxation from the necessaries of life to the luxuries and superfluities which ought to bear it. In this position he expressed himself as being in the most perfect accord with his people. He was no more in favor of a protective tariff per se than the ways and means committee which presented the bill. The issue attempted to be raised between the friends of internal revenue repeal and those of tariff reform is a false issue. Because a legislator is opposed to one unjust, unwise and unnecessary.

He then stated that the evil of over taxation is not the greatest evil with which the country is afflicted. Excessive tariff taxes effect certain branches of business, and the internal revenue tax effects other branches of business in other localities, but hundreds of millions of surplus revenue withdrawn from the channels of trade effect every branch of business and every section of country; and, in the language of the president, "cripples our natural energies, suspends our country's of business and every section of country; and, in the language of the president, "cripples our natural energies, suspends our country's development, prevents investment in productive enterprises, produces financial disturbance, and invites schemes of public plunder." The greatest evil, therefore, to be corrected is to prevent the accumulation of this dangerous surplus. Upon this proposition all thinking men agree. On the question as to where the reduction in taxation shall be made so as to prevent the accumulation of this surplus they differ. The close of the war found a taxing system in operation which levied contributions on everything which could bear at tax, but when peace was restored and the army and navy reduced to a peace footing, most of these taxes were repealed. But instead of repealing those which bear most heavily upon the masses of the people, precisely the opposite course was pursued and the taxes exacted from the corporations and aggregated capital of the country were repealed and the high tariff taxes and the excise taxes—the two forms of taxation always most odious and oppressive to the people. always most odious and oppressive to the peo-ple—were perpetuated. A high protective tariff never was a democratic doctrine—neither was an excise tax. Both are war taxes, both are oppressive, both foster monopolies and both was an excise tax. Both are war taxes, both are opprossive, both foster monopolies and both are undemocratic.

He has no sympathy with the cry of protection to American labor—it is the cry of fanatics, or worse, the cry of hypocrites. The other argument in favor of protection, that it affords a home market for the products of the farm is equally erroneous. If a protective tariff really benefits the American farmer he ought to be the most prosperous man in the world, for he pays the highest average tariff taxes in the world. But it does not benefit the farmer. There is no real prosperity among the farmers of the south and west. A percentage of the farm in these sections, appallingly large, is under mortgage to the citizens of the industrial states who have grown rich under the operations of a protective tariff.

He then drew a picture of the condition of the southern farmers at the close of the war, when without anything to work their farms, were compelled to mortgage them for means with which to make the first crop, and thus, he said, it had gone on from year to year until the present time, where they are still under mortgage—the only difference being that the rate of interest is not now as exorbitant as it was then—but still ruinously high. But onerous, unjust and and oppressive as the present tariff is, the other and only remaining form of taxation, the excise tax, is even more onerous, unjust and oppressive. The tariff effects everybody in every section of the country equally. The internal revenue burdens the people in only a few sections. It is, therefore, a partial tax burdening a few who, in addition to it pay the same tariff taxes as all the other people in every other section of the country. He then argued that the internal revenue taxes were never intended to be resorted to except in cases of supreme necessity. The emergency which called them into existence taxes were never intended to be resorted to except in cases of supreme necessity. The emergency which called them into existence has been passed twenty years and they are still in force, but ought to be repealed.

The argument that the system ought to be pernetuated because the tax is easily collected is shocking to our sense of fairness. That tribute levied by the freebooters on the commerce which went through the straight of Gibraltar. which went through the straight of Gibraltan was an easy tax collected, but it was an unearned tax, a dishonest tax, and a robber tax.

He would return to the old democratic landmarks and collect all revenue for the support of the government at the ports. The democratic platform of '84 said this could be done, and it can be but it recoveried to a welcome. and it can be, but if we are afraid to make the experiment let us repeal the excise taxes and supply the deficiency of revenue by a gradual income tax. This would relieve the productive industries of the country from the burden of taxation and place it upon the wealth of the country where it properly belongs. But after all, he said the great danger to the country was from the large accumulation of idle capital in the treasury. The president has called the attention of congress in unmistakable tones to the dangers that threaten us from this source, and the responsibility of averting these dangers is upon this congress. We must avert it by preventing the accumulation of a surplus. It can only be done by lowering taxation. We cannot stop to quarrel as to how this shall be done or on what. If we cannot get the internal revenue and it can be, but if we are afraid to make th to quarrel as to how this shall be done or on what. If we cannot get the internal revenue abolished we must reduce the tariff. If we cannot get the tariff revised we must abolish the internal revenue. If we cannot get all of either let us take a little of both. That is what the Mills bill proposes. It seems to have been framed in a spirit of compromise, and while it is in years we were a bill as Lycald. to have been framed in a spirit of compromise, and while it is in no sense such a bill as I would have framed had the duty divolved upon me. I accept it in the spirit it seems to have been offered and shall give it a hearty support, trusting that in the near future the entire system of internal revenue taxation may be wiped from the statute books never to be re-stored to harrass and oppress a brave and patriotic people.

WASHINGTON. May 10.—In the senate the railroad land grant forfeiture bill was taken up, the question being on Mr. Call's motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was pass reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed. There seemed to be some question as to the amendment offered yesterday by Mr. George, and agreed to; whether it effected the purpose which he intended—the protection of rights of homestead and preemption claimants.

Mr. Spooner, explained the difficulity and favored a reconsideration of the vote, so as to have the matter corrected, but Mr. Plumb moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. This latter motion was disagreed to—yeas 23, nays 34.

The vote passing the bill was then reconsided and the bill again brought before the senate.

The necessary amendment to protect preemption and homestead claimants was then offered by Mr. Spooner and agreed to.

Mr. Call offered an amendment confirming the titles of purchasers of certain railroad lands in Fiorida lying adjacent to parts of railroad lines constructed within the time limited in the granting act.

Mr. George explained that there were doubts entertained by the courts and lawyers in Florida whether when the entire line of railroad was not constructed within the time limited or was not constructed at all, the lands along the completed parts were not forfeited. The object of amendment was to remove the doubt.

Mr. Plumb moved to amend the amendment by adding a proviso that a mortgage or pledge of land by any of railroad companies should be considered, as a sale.

Mr. Call accepted the proviso.

Mr. Call's amendment was agreed to and the bill passed.

Mr. Call's amendment was agreed to and the bill passed.

Mr. Allison, from the committee on appropriations, reported back the pension appropriations, reported back the pension appropriation bill and the bill making appropriations to enable the executive departments to participate in the centennial exposition of the Ohio Valley and Central States, in Cincinnati, from July to October, 1888, and gave notice that he would ask the senate to consider these bills next Monday.

Upon metion of Mr. Sherman the senate proceeded to the consideration of the Hoar resolution providing for the presence of an official reporter during the discussion of the fisheries treaty, and on motion of Mr. Edmunds, seconded by Mr. Hoar, the galleries were cleared and the doors closed. The senate, being in secret legislative session.

Mr. Sayers, of Texas, called up the bill making an appropriation of $450,000 to supply the deficiency in appropriations for the expenses of collecting revenue from customs for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1888.

There is a clause in the bill repealing permanent appropriations for the collection of customs.

On motion of Mr. Sayers an amendment was adopted appropriating $3,500,000 to supply the deficiency in appropriations for the payment of army and navy pensions to invalid widows, minor children and dependent relatives, and survivors of war of 1812.

On motion of Mr. Sayres an amendment was adopted providing that the appropriation of $190,000 made by act of March 4, 1887, for heating apparatus to be furnished before June 30, 1888, to certain public buildings, shall continue available to enable the secretary of the treasury to fulfil contracts entered into prior to June 30, 1888. The bill then passed as 30, 1888, to certain public buildings, shall continue available to enable the secretary of the treasury to fulfil contracts entered into prior to June 30, 1888. The bill then passed as amended.

Subsequently Mr. Reed, of Maine, stated that he had been informed that the bill contained a clause repealing the permanent appropriation for the collection of customs, and he desired an opportunity to oppose that clause; but objection was made.

The house then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Springer, of Illinois, in the chair) on the tariff bill.

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, denied that the tariff feature of the Mills bill would reduce the revenues one cent. He showed, as the duties were lowered revenues increased. But had it been constructed with the principle in view of letting into the country, duty free, such articles as were produced in this country, and taxing such as could not be produced here, he never could be accused of aspiring to be a leader, but he was willing to hang on the walls a leaver heaving the inscription "Transtr, our produced here the rest part is the inscription of Transtr, our leaving the inscription." leader, but he was willing to hang on the walls a banner bearing the inscription "Twenty-four millions off of the internal revenue; seven-teen millions off of tobacco and seven millions millions off of the internal revenue; seventeen millions off of tobacco and seven millions off of special license," and under that write, "Free sugar, and a bounty of two cents per pound." That was all that was needed to reduce the revenues $85,000,000. He called for volunteers from the democratic side, but there was no response.

Mr. Wilkinson, of Louisiana, said he could cording to his views or his constituents, he would say to the friends of honest reduction in would say to the friends of honest reduction in taxation that his people would not shrink from bearing their share in the reduction in taxes now imposed on the people.

Mr. Barnum, of Pennsylvania, said that Grover Cleveland, acting president of the United States, had solemnly proclaimed a doctrine which was the spawn of the cotton combined. Well-great planks and of Kentucky combine of Wall street sharks and of Kentuck combine of Wall street sharks and of Kentucky whisky rings. By protection only could fair, remunerative wages be paid for labor. He was, therefore, for protection and against class legislation in the interest of cotton, whisky and Great Britain.

Mr. Brumm denounced the "gall" of southern democrats who set up a great regard for ern democrats who set up a great regard for labor. That same element had reduced its labor. That same element had reduced its laborers to more abject slavery than they ever were before the war. Then they named their slaves. Today they added insult to injury by calling them freemen, and disgracing them by placing them side by side with convicts, and shooting them like dogs if they dared to protest. At the conclusion of Mr. Clement's speech the committee rose and the house, at 5:30, took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session for debate on the tariff bill.

Mr. Yardley, of Pennsylvania, entered a strong protest against the passage of the bill. If there had been any earnest desire to diminish the surplus the house might have passed the Blair educational bill, as it had come from the senate instead of allowing it to be strangled in the house committee, or the administration might have purchased outstanding bonds to any reasonable amount.

Mr. Tracy, of New York, speaking, as he said, for the empire state, declared his people wanted a large reduction of important duties. He took up and denied in detail with the aid of quotations from messages and documents, assertions that Andrew Jackson, Samuel Tilden and Grover Cleveland had been high protectionists.

There was some division on the committee on platform as regards the tariff planks, and it was expected there would be a lively debate this morning in the convention when the report was submitted, but the report was sent in unanimously and adopted.

There were one or two protectionists on the committee, but the sentiment was so overwhelmingly in favor of reduction that they acquiesced in the decision of the majority, and the report was adopted by the convention unanimously. A majority of the delegates to the national convention at St. Louis are understood to favor the candidacy of Governor Gray for vice-president, but they are not instructed. Major H. S. The following platform was unanimously adopted:

The democratic party of the state of Alabama, in convention assembled, declare

1. That the firmness, ability and statesmanship displayed by President Cleveland in the administration of his high office entitles him to the confidence and support of his fellow-citizens. That we indorse and approve his administration and especially his action and efforts to secure reform and a reduction of the lariff, and we believe that the interests of the country demand his re-election; and to that end our delegates to the national convention are hereby instructed to vote for his renomination.

2. That we are unalterably opposed to the present war tariff. We demand a reform of the tariff and a reduction of the surplus in the treasury by a reduction of the whole people of Alabama.

3. That we indorse the administration of Governor Thomas Seay, which has been so eminently satisfactory to the whole people of Alabama.

4. That we favor liberal appropriations for the public schools in order that the means of acquiring knowledge of the rudiments of education may be afforded to every child in the state.

5. That we favor the encouragement of immigration to this state, and to that end we recommend such wise and fudicious legislation by the general assembly as will best accomplish that result.

The most important episode of the day, probably, was an expression publicly made by one of Mr. Roderick Butler's editors, present at the convention, that the defeat of BoblTaylor, as indicated by the report of the proceedings of the democratic state convention, received this morning, and was sure to make him the republican candidate for governor, and this judgment was openly indorsed by the correspondents interviewed. This expression of faith on republican predictions is supplemented by the hearty efforts in his behalf recently of such genuine republican exponents as the Knoxville Journal, the Johnson City Commoner and by Butler, Brownlow, Hacker, Reeves and Hesser, leaders of the republican party. Houk, Arch Hughes and Brownlow told your correspondent at the time Bate was elected senator that the republican members of the legislature were assured by Bob Taylor that if they would vote for him for senator, he would pledge himself in writing to vote for the Blair bill and for a protective tariff.

The people, acting through their respective legislatures, will bring the senate to his support. With a full schwoof his personal and political merits and power for future induced, we declare our preference for Grover Cleveland as his own successor in the office of president of the United States, and we instruct our delegates to the convention at St. Louis to cast their unanimous vote for him as the democratic candidate for president, and to vote as a unit in all matters which pertain to the business of that convention.

National transition ought to be limited to the aggregate annual sum needed for the following purposes: Interest on public debt, with adequate provision for the payment of its principal at maturity, the pryment of pensions granted by the United States, and to provide means for all necessary expenses of an economically administrated government. Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation and ought not to be longer tolerated. Success in great political contests cannot be achieved without effort, and this convention requests all those of whom it represents to begin at an early day the work of complete organization for the coming campaign.

Cashler Boyce's Coolness.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., May 10.—The climax in the case of the Willimantic Savings institute, was reached today in the arrest of Cashler H. F. Boyce, on indictments of twenty-five counts, alleging the misuse of deposits, false entries and appropriating $35,000. Boyce takes his arrest coolly and has openly boasted that the directors dared not arrest him, as in that case they would all be implicated as equally guilty as himself. He is endeavoring to secure bondsmen.

Anontrailer, vi., May 10.—The democratic state convention organized this forenoon with Patrick M. Meldon, of Rutland, as permanent chairman. Mr. Meldon addressed the convention. His approving references to Mr. Cleveland's administration were greeted with great applause. He spoke of the oppression of the poor resulting from the high prices due to protection, and presented a clowing nicture. of the poor resulting from the high prices due to protection, and presented a glowing picture of Mr. Cleveland as the great champion of reform in this regard. He said: "We have but one candidate, but he is worth more than all others put together. The republicans want to elect the bloody shirt personified. We want a set of principles personified in Grover Cleveland." [Great applause.]

After the appointment of a committee on resplutions, nominations were in order. The following were made by vote: Governor, S. C. Shurliff, of Montpelier; lieutenant-governor, T. C. Sullivan, Burlington; treasurer, W. E. Peck, Barnet.

A Resolution Hastily Tabled—President Cleveland Indorsed.

NASH"ILE, Tenn., May 10.—The democratic state convention reassembled at 9 o'clock, W. C. Houston in the chair. A resolution was introduced criticizing President Cleveland for allowing the republicans to remain in office, which was promptly tabled on motion of ex-Congressman Casey Young, of Memphis. Cheers were given for Cleveland. The convention went into the election of four delegates from the state at large to the national convention at St. Louis. Hon. A. M. Looney and Captain John R. Goodwyn were declared elected. The committee appointed to draw up a platform made their report, in which they heartily indorsed President Cleveland's administration, his recent message to congress and management of affairs in Tennessee during the past two years. Terrific Explosion of Natural Gas

ST. FAUL'S CATHEDRAL HAS ITS Beautiful Interior Destroyed by Fire—Canes of the Explosion—The Losses, Insurance, Etc.

Buffalo, May 10 .- This morning was decidedly a sensational and disastrous one in Buf-talo. A number of explosions of natural gas occurred, almost simultaneously, caused, it is supposed, by over-pressure, and caused wide-spread excitement, besides destroying the finest church in Buffalo and doing other dam-age. St. Paul's extended at the pride and allowed. age. St. Paul's cathedral, the pride and glory burned out, and the roof gone, but the strong stone walls and graceful spire remain. At 9:20 o'clock flames were seen bursting out of the fine stained glass windows of the church, at the junction of Main and Eric streets, and instantaneously most of the in-terior was a mass of flames. An explosion had occurred in the basement furnace, being sup-plied with natural gas, and the force was so-great as to tear off and blow out the heavy doors on the Eric and Pearl streets sides. The people ran to see what was the matter, and a few entered the vestibule of the church only to be driven out by the flames. An alarm and a few entered the vestibule of the church only to be driven out by the flames. An alarm was at once turned in, to which the fire department quickly responded, but when they arrived nothing could be done to save the interior of the stately edifice, as the flames were bursting from every window. Streams were quickly brought to bear with but little effect and the fire, in a few moments, had reached the heavily-timbered roof. A great crowd gathered and gazed awe-stricken at the spectacle, while exclamations of sorrow were heard on every hand. The fire burned with especial fury on the Erie street side, when it attacked the fine Hook & Hasting's organ in the choir loft. In half an hour from the time os discovery, the interior of the noble church was completely destroyed, but it was evident that the massive walls and tower would stand.

W. H. Walker, one of the wardens, and several other officers of the church were early on the scene and Rev. Dr. Brown, rector, who retires next month to assume the rectorship of St. Thomas, New York, soon arrived. Robert Wilkeson, sexton, says he was in the building two or three times this morning and the last time previous to the fire was twenty minutes before it broke out. He had been in the Guild house and was returning to the church and had almost reached the sidewalk near the church, when he heard a roaring noise and saw the large doors blown from their hinges out on to the stone stairway that led up to them. Immediately there came vomiting and belching out through the doorways huge volumes of smoke and flame, and in less time than it takes to tell, the whole inside of the building was burning. When asked as to the origin of the fire, he said he was satisfied that it was natural gas that caused it.

origin of the fire, he said he was satisfied that it was natural gas that caused it.

A. E. Perrin says he happened to be looking directly at the church, and was amazed at seeing the doors blown almost into the street. Up to this time Mr. Perrin says there had been no smoke, but the blowing open of the doors seemed to have caused sufficient draft and vent to give the element full play, and almost at once the fiames burst through the doors and windows, and a minute or two later the handsome windows were cracking and bulging with heat. The church was valued at about $250,000. Insurance on the building, $55,000; about $3,000 on the memorial windows, and about $2,500 on the ergan.

A Quarrel Over a Frisoner.

Lost.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 9.—[Special.]—
United States Deputy Marshal Milam returned today from a rough and perilous trip into the western portion of the state. He was searching for witnesses in a case now pending in the United States commissioners court in this city. The witnesses did not want to be found, and they had plenty of friends to help them out of the way.

Killed For His Money.

Columbia, S. C., May 10.—(Special.)—A horrible murder is reported from Cypress township, in Darlington county. Joseph James, a retired farmer and money lender, was shot in his own piazza by some unknown assassin, and almost instantly killed. His body was riddled with buckshot, forty taking effect on the right side. James had three thousand dollars on his person when killed. It is supposed that the slayer intended robbery, but was deterred by finding persons in the house. There is no clue to the guilty party. James was an Englishman, about 60 years old, and had been in Darlington county since the war.

 The laying of the corner-stone of a new Methodist church in Burke county recently was full of interest. Colonel J. J. Jones read a history of the church, the outlines of which are here given: The old church was a weather boarding building, without plastering or ceiling, and without sash or glass in the windows -built by Samul Garlick, father of Judge Edward Garlick, about the year 1812. Among the earlier pioneer Methodist ministers who preached in this old church were: Hope Hull, James Russell, Bishop Andrews, Bishop Pierce, John J. Twiggs, Allen Turner, Leonard C. C. Peak, Samuel Anthony, John P. Duncan and others. The membership of the old church was very small, consisting mainly of the family of Edward Garlick and the family of Seaborn H. Jones, father of John J. Jones. Seaborn H. Jones was classleader and steward from about 1830 to Edward Garlick was chorister, rais ing all tunes during same period. In 1851 Seaborn H. Jones resigned office of class-leader and steward, and his son, John J. Jones, was elected to succeed him in the trust. At the time of the erection of a new church in 1858, the membership did not exceed ten in number. In 1858 J. J. Jones was a self-constituted committee of one, who built a new church on lot where the second church had been torn down to make way for third house of worship. He built this second house from beginning to end with a negro carpenter hired for the purpose. He had exclusive and entire control of building the church; no other person had a word to say or suggest in the matter. All the hewing of timbers and all hauling of material was done by negroes and teams of himself and father d most of the expense of building fell upon them. Bishop Pierce dedicated the church in 1858. The entering of the new house in 1858, served to inspire the church with new zeal The membership now numbers one hundred and fifty-seven. J. J. Jones was from 1851 to 1873-a period of twenty-two years-sole steward of the church. The board of stewards has of late been enlarged. The last and most imposing part of the ceremony was the laying of the last brick, by Mrs. Margaret A. Jones-the

Mr. Cubbege Williams and several others cut a bee tree near Troupville. The hollow, which was tolerable large, was found to be filled with honey and comb for a distance of fifteen feet. After securing the honey, one of the boys cut into the tree above the portion used by the bees and found a rattlesnake three feet long. As there was no hole in the tree except the one which contained the honey, the supposition is that the snake crawled up the hollow before the bees began to hive, and the honey comb had effectually blocked his exit. Of course the snake had honey, but he was short on "peach."

TOO SENSITIVE TO LIVE

Why Mrs. Christian Jumped Into the Water.

She Discovers That Her First Husband w Still Living, and Dies Rather Than Bear the Exposure.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 10.-[Special.]-The tragic suicide of Mrs. Christian, wife of the cashier of the Hygeia hotel, Old Point Con fort, Va., excites interest here because the lady formerly lived here. She jumped into the Chesapeake Bay from the deck of a steam-er last Saturday, and before she could be res-cued was drowned. The act was a total surprise, and no cause could be assigned for it.

Among the records in the courthouse Washington, D. C., is one of a divorce pr oced ng instituted by Kate Small against James B. Small on January 26, 1884. It comes to light that the Kate Small is none other than the unfortunate lady who so rashly took her own life. The papers of the case were found on investigation a most pathetic story was re vealed, showing clearly the influences which wrought upon Mrs. Christian's mind impell ing her to seek the refuge of self destruct

She was at the time of her death only about twenty-five years old, and a woman of exceptional attractions and refinement. She was of good family, in Georgia, her maiden name being Kate Billings, at one time a residen of Atlanta. In 1880 James B. Small, a man of the type which has a peculiar fascination for young and inexperienced girls, per suaded he to marry him, and the ceremony was performed in Macon on November 5, 1880. He proved to be gambler, and subsequent to her marriage with him she made some most humiliating dis coveries. They came to Savannah and three weeks after their marriage he deserted her, leaving her in this city. In the short time they lived together he subjected her to constant unkindness and indignity, and when the news reached her that Small was dead it carried no sorrow with it. Before this news came, however, she had instituted proceedings for a

She went to Washington and secured a position in the department of agriculture, and while there met Mr. Christian, then clerk of the Metropolitan hotel. They were married, and her life began to recover some of the pleas are of which Small had so cruelly robbed it when she was scarcely more than a child. Not ong since, however, she was startled and hor rified to learn that Small was still living in another part of the country. Innocently she had been guilty of bigamy. She saw that she had committed a crime and deceived her husband. Her too sensitive mind was shocked by the liscovery, and she decided to take her life

It was only a question of a few weeks till she would have secured a legal divorce from Small, thus enabling her to set aright the accidental flaw in her matrimonial relations with Mr. Christian. Mr. Carrington, who was her solicitor in the case, had all the necessary proofs in his possession, and was only waiting for the case to be reached.

There was a decided disposition to keep the facts of the matter quiet, and it is doubtful whether they would ever have been known had it not been for the misconstructions and misinterpretations which would inevitably have followed Mrs. Christian's act had it been left unexplained.

A private letter received from Mr. Christian, says that his wife was taken sea sick, and going to the side of the steamer to relieve her nausea fell overboard.

Memorial Day in Rome.

ROME, Ga.. May 10.—[Special.]—This was Memorial Day in Rome. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the procession formed in front of the Baptist church. The firemen turned out in force, and the Rome and Shorter female colleges and the public schools were well represented. At the cemetery an immense consented. At the centerly at infiniteless con-course was gathered. The ceremonies were opened with prayer by Rev. O. B. Hudgins, followed by music. Mayor Ayer then intro-duced the orator of the day, Mr. John T. Graves, of the Tribune. Mr. Graves spoke Graves, of the Trioune. Mr. Graves spoke twenty minutes and was frequently applauded. His address was a beautiful gem of oratory, and was in every way worthy of the man and the occasion. After music Rev. George F. Goetchius pronounced the benediction. The graves were then profusely decorated with choice and beautiful flowers, and Memorial Day-was at an end.

For Violating the Revenue Law. Douglasville, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]— The superior court, Judge R. H. Clark presiding, has been in session here for almost two weeks. Last week was devoted to civil business, while the court held a reception for criminals this week. Most of the offenses were of minor importance. Two cases, however, have attracted much attention. The first was against A. L. Dunn, a drummer for Kenny & Werner, of Atlanta, charged with a violation of the prohibition law. He came here, took orders for whisky, received the money, and then Kenny & Werner expressed the whisky. He was convicted and fined three hundred dollars. Solicitor-General J. S. Candler for the state and J. S. James and Adolph Brandt for the defendant. siding, has been in session here for almost two

The Future of Marrietta

The Future of Marrietta.

MARIETTA, Ga., Day. 10.—[Special.]—The future of our lovely little city grows brighter every day and northern capital is continually coming in, and we are glad to hear of an occasional investment by some enterprising Atlanta man. Yesterday Northcutt & Dobbs, real estate agents, sold to Mr. Joseph M. Brown, of the Western and Atlantic railroad, Mr. W. A. Couper's home on Whitlock avenne, for $12,000. This splendid property will be handsomely improved by Mr. Brown. Marietta feel's proud over Mr. Brown's purchase, and hopes that it will not be long before she can claim him as one of her citizens.

The Prize Winners.

The Prire Winners.

Albany, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—Two of the prizes at the recent Albany art and floral fair were won by Macon exhibitors. Thereupon your correspondent from that city is jubilant. It did not strike him, perhaps, that the exhibits made from Macon at the fair were by present residents of the central city, but all of them former residents of Albany, the city of their nativity, and who have taken with them and transplanted to Macon some of Albany's artistic talents and culture.

The City Assessors at Work. GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—Messrs. James W. Smith, James Evans and Charles A. Dozier, the city assessors for this year, are now on their rounds making up their assessments. It is thought that the permanent improvements and enhancement in values for the year will run up to about $100,000. This will add considerable to the amount of Gainesville's taxable property.

Blatts is Equal to the Task. GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—While Major Butt, editor of the Eagle, is at the gate city this week "getting out political timber," Mr. John Blatts, the old reliable publisher, is running the whole machine. Mr. Blatts is a faithful one and never leaves his post.

Death of a Child.

Macon, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—This morning, Nora, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Adams, died. She was about two years old. The body will be carried to Washington county for burial.

Safe, permanent and complete are the cures of bilious and intermittent diseases, made by Prickly Ash Bitters. Dyspepsia, general debility, habitual constipation, liver and kidney complaints are speedily eradicated from the system. It disinfects, cleanses and eliminates all malaria. Health and vigor are obtained more rapidly and permanently by the use of this great natural antidote than by any other remedy heretofore known. As a blood putifier and tonic it brings health, renewed energy and vitality to a worn and diseased body.

IN THE MACON COURTS.

Pointers From Uncle Sam's Tribunal Sixty Days on the Chaingang.

Macon, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—The only case in the United States court today was where S. E. Vaughan was charged with retailing whisky without license. The case was dismissed. Judge Speer will deliver his decision in the case of August Bro. vs. J. T. Callaway and others, tomorrow morning at the opening of court.

The express company is now trying to recover the amount from the bondsmen of Mr. Fink. At this writing Mr. Claud Estes, representing the plaintiff, is speaking, after which Captain J. C. Rutherford will make his argument for the defendant.

The jury in the case of W. W. Chapman vs. U. M. Gunn returned a verdict last night for the defendant for the amount of $175. Mr. Chapman sued for two thousand dollars for damages done to his property in Dooly county by the spreading of a fire built on the premises of Mr. Gunn.

And all those whose systems are run down need a medicine that will act gentle and does not weaken. Simons Liver Regulator is not only mild in its action but invigorates like a glass of wine, giving tone and strength to the body.

Extract from a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia:

"I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons Liver Regulator with good effect. It is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

A HOME REMEDY.

Unequalled by any other. The Regulator is the best preventive and preparatory medicine. No matter what the attack, a dose of it will afford relief and in ordinary cases will effect a speedy cure. Its use for over a half a century by thousands of people has indorsed it as the best.

"The value of a household remedy consists in its accessibility as well as its efficacy, and many attacks of disease are warded off by convenient medicine. Simmons Liver Regulator is a most valuable medicine to have in the house, and I heartily recommend it as the counce of preventive's on much talked of and wished for."—T. W. aspen leaves for hours after leaving the shaft, and with no ill effects, but on the contrary professing to be relieved from pains and aches. Now that this place will cure all who come we do not believe, but we believe many sufferers of nervous diseases will be healed by the treatment used here. The climate is superb, the water excellent, with slight tinge of iron and other substances, all of which is conducive to health, independent of the shaft. While some have been cured as by magic, others improve slowly, but all who give the place a fair trial believe themselves benefited."

This is signed by the above named parties. Colonel Hill went down last week. He was a skeptic when he started and was only prevailed on by his family. He has suffered some time with rheumatism, and when he made up his mind to go down he said he was going to investigate the well closely and report what he found out about it, and the certificate is the result of his investigations so far. LEAPED TO DEATH.

The Body of Broker N. W. T. Hatch Found.

Locked Doors Make the Tragedy Mysterious-A Policeman to Dash Them In-AGreat Social Scandal.

"Hulloa! Why, there's a man lying dead in the yard!"

Two house painters, employed to brighten up the premises of No. 64 West Twentieth street, had just arrived at the scene of their day's labor when one of them made this starting discovery.

It was the first step toward unrayeling a ghastly tragedy and a social scandal, which has plunged more than one family into grief The dead man was Nathaniel W. T. Hatch

Resort! a well known member of the New York stock exchange, and the yard in which his body was found did not belong to his own residence, but to that of another man.

How he came to be there and how he met bis death forms a curious story of city life.

When the painters recovered from their surprise they proceeded to notify Mrs. Charles Scofield, wife of the occupant of the dwelling, and she stepped out of a window on the second floor to the roof of an extension back of the parlor floor. Looking over into the yard she at once recognized the dead man as Nathaniel at once recognized the dead man as Nathaniel W. T. Hatch, who had been in her company a few hours before. According to all accounts Mrs. Scofield acted in a tolerably cool manner, for she at once sent out a servant to summon a HUSBAND AND WIFE ARRESTED. Officer Stephen J. Reardon, of the Nineteenth precinct, was on post on Twentieth street and happened to be near the house when called. He was shown the body and informed by Mrs. Scofield that Mr. Hatch had been in the house until a late hour, his presence there being the cause of a quarrel between her and her husband. She also said that Mr. Hatch had become alarmed at the altercation, and she supposed he had endeavored to escape by descending to the yard by a leap to a tree, but had missed his hold and fell headlong to the flagging beneath. Officer Reardon found Mr. Scofield also in the house, so he told them they were both under arrest and he sent word to the station house in West Thirteenth street.

Detectives Brett and Hayes at once hastened to the scene, and in turn listened to the statements of Mr. and Mrs. Scofield, being as much puzzled by them as had been the patrolman.

much puzzled by them as had been the patrolman.

EVIDENTLY JUMPED INTO THE TREE.

Dr. Gustav Shoeler, deputy to Coroner Ferdinand Levy, was in turn summoned by the police. On his arrival he proceeded to examine the body as it lay at the foot of the tall alianthus tree which is growing in the yard. Raising the head from the pool of blood which had collected around it, he discovered a terrible cut, and it required but slight pressure with his fingers to show him that the dead man had sustained a compound fracture of the base of the skull. It was quite evident that death had been almost instantanenous, for in the clenched fingers were fragments of a small branch, and under his arm was a section of a bough nearly four inches in diameter.

The prisoners were then escorted to the coroner's office in Park row, a carriage being called into requisition for the purpose of conveying them there. The policeman in charge was Officer Reardon, who had made the arrest. News of the tragedy having preceded them the courtroom used by the coroners was crowded with a motley gathering of spectators.

Mrs. Scofield was very pale, and trembled a

Mrs. Scofield was very pale, and trembled a good deal as she sat on a chair awaiting examination. She is a tall woman, rather inclined to embonpoint, her figure having a certain touch of masculinity about it which explained her domination over her husband. Her face is quite engaging, if not handsome, a heavy mass of dark brown hair giving her head an impressive outline. In her well shaped ears were a pair of rings shaped like horseshoes and closely studded with large diamonds. She was elegantly dressed in a black satin skirt, over which she wore a black stamped velvet wrap, ornamented in front with costly lace. On her head was a dark olive green velvet bonnet, with a black veil falling over the upper part of her face. A pair of dark brown kid gloves completed her attire, and she presented a very ladylike appearance, despite her surroundings and evident discomposure.

The coroner proceeded to take Mrs. Scofield's affidavit, which was as follows:

The wife's sworn statement.

Lillian E. Scofield, being sworn, says: "I am married, and my husband is alive. I reside at No. 64 West Twentieth street. I met Mr. Hatch at his father's office, (W. T. Hatch & Sons). No. 14 Nassau street vesterday. I Mrs. Scofield was very pale, and trembled a

"On our way we met Mr. Ferris and all three of us took supper together. We had wine during the meal. Mr. Ferris then left us, but Mr. Hatch and I remained there until 11:45 p. m. He then accompanied me home to 64 West Twentieth street, and he went up stairs. I followed him soon after. My husband was asleep in the back parlor.

MR. HATCH BECAME ALAEMED.

"When we reached our parlor I lighted the gas and Mr. Hatch was on the point of leaving when we heard footsteps down stairs. Mr. Hatch became alarmed, so I told him to remain in the room while I ascertained what the trouble was. He then locked the door.

"When I went down stairs I met my husband, and he asked me who was up stairs. I told him that I would not tell him. He then said that he thought it was Mr. Hatch, as he had seen him come in with me. I then said to my husband: 'Won't you please step into the parlor and allow Mr. Hatch to pass out?'

"He did so, and I went up to the room and rapped, but received no answer. I rapped several times, but failed to induce Mr. Hatch to open the door. My husband remained down stairs all this time.

HE ESCAPED BY THE WINDOW.

HE ESCAPED BY THE WINDOW.

"If finally went for an officer, and when we entered the house I told him to break open the deor of the bathroom, and he did so, though he was reluctant to do so until I said I must get into my apartments. When the door had been broken open I called for Mr. Hatch, but he was nowhere to be found. I noticed, however, that the window was open, and concluded that he had escaped by way of the rear piagra.

the brother-in-law. He is an elderly looking man, and wears a long gray beard, which he tugged at in evident excitement, while with the other hand he mopped his perspiring forehead. As he grasped her hand. Ferris said in the most commonplace way: "How are you?" "Why, poor Mr. Hatch is dead," replied Mrs. Scofield.
"Yes, it's terrible," said Ferris, and then they turned to listen to the evidence that was being given by the husband. It was a follows: THE HUSBAND'S STATEMENT.

Charles Schofield, being sworn, said: "I am the husband of Lillian E. Schofield. I got home about ten o'clock last night. I could not get into my sleeping apartment, so went into the back parlor, and, lying down on the sofa, soon fell asleep.

"About one a. m. voices awoke me, and on listening I recognized the voices of my wife and Mr. Hatch. I then went into the front parlor and sat down. Half an hour after she came down and said she had company I replied that I knew it—that it was Mr. Hatch. I also said I would leave the house, when she replied: 'All right—go.'

"When I went for my overcoat my wife objected and said I could not sleep in the house that night. I said, 'All right; I'll go,' and added that I would return in the morning for my things.

SHE TURNS HIM ADR F: IN THE COLD.

"I then left the house and went to the second stoop and sat down. It was then between two and three a.m. I kept company with the policeman on post until half-past five a.m. About an hour after I went to my house to get my coat. Mrs. Scofield came out of the parlor, when I sa'd, 'I want my things, according to promise, and then I go.' She replied, 'Don't be foolish,' and urged me to remain and get some sleep. It was then about seven a. m., and I consented, so undressed and went to bed, soon falling to sleep, as I was worn out.

plied, Don't be foolish,' and urged me to remain and get some sleep. It was then about seven a. m., and I consented, so undressed and went to bed, soon falling to sleep, as I was worn out.

"About a quarter to eight my wife woke me and said there was a man dead in the yard. I looked over the piazza, or extension, and identified Mr. Hatch. I had frequently met the deceased in my apartments during the past six months. I did not see him last night, but I recognized his voice."

THEY ARE BOTH DISCHARGED.

His evidence having been read over to him and duly signed the coroner announced that he would proceed no further in the case for a day or two, as he wished to give the police an opportunity to sift the matter more thoroughly than they had yet been able to do.

He observed that the statements of the prisoners seemed probable enough, and Mrs. Scofield had authenticated that part of her testimany; regarding her Wall street operations by producing vouchers and other memoranda. He would, therefore, release the husband and wife from custody, as their counsel had become surety for their appearance whenever demanded.

This policeman, James McCormick, was intervied while parading his post last evening. Quietly swinging his long night club, McCormick proceeded to tell his part of the story.

"I had gone over my beat once," he said, "and it was near or just past one o'clock in the morning when, as I passed the row of houses opposite the Episcopal church, on the corner. He seemed to be very quiet and peaceable, but the hour was so late I, of course, asked him what he was doing there. He replied by saying that his name was Scofield and that he occupied the corner house. I suggested that he go in, for the night was cool and I noticed that he had no overcoat on.

TURNED HIM OUT FOR HATCH.

"He then told me that he had been turned out of the house by his wife, who had a man inside whose name was Hatch. He believed something wrong was going on and he wanted to keep watch and get evidence for a divorce. I remarked that he would get beat.

"Every time I passed that row of houses I found the man still sitting on the stoop, and he always persisted that the man Hatch was inside with his wife. Being harmless I let him stay, and that is what he means when he says I kept him company,

"Of course I had no idea that the mysterious man was lying dead in the yard behind the house, for if I had I should have attended to the matter. Just before I went off post I missed Scofield, and I did not hear of the tragedy until several hours after, when I got up from having a sleep."

missed Scofield, and I did not hear of the tragedy until several hours after, when I got up from having a sleep."

The most natural theory regarding the manner of Mr. Hatch's death is that he was naturally anxious to avoid the husband of the woman in whose company he had spent so many hours. When she told him that her husband was coming upstairs, and she stepped out on the landing, he must have hastily locked the bedroom door behind her. Whether he then proceeded to make his escape from the house by leaping tewards the fatal tree, or was alarmed and made desperate by the vigorous efforts of Officer McCormick to force open the bathroom door, it is, of course, impossible to determine. If Mrs. Scofield tells the truth when she says she called through the keyhole that the course was clear, and received no answer, it seems probable that the unfortunate man had already met his sad and shocking fate.

That he made the terrible leap voluntarily, while laboring under excitement induced by the fear of discovery and subsequent exposure, is quite evident, for, as already described, his fingers held pieces of the shattered twigs, and his folded arms clasped the broken boughs.

He was wearing his high silk hat at the time, for it was found in the yard a few feet away from his bleeding body. He was also fully dressed, having even his overcoat on. In his pockets were found $19.55 in money, and a gold hunting case watch, bearing on the outside his monogram, "N. W. T. H.," and on the inside his full name. There was also a school bill signed by Mrs. A. Brown, of No. 713 Fifth avenue, in payment for the tuition of his two daughters.

This knowledge served her in a good stead, as some ten years sincefher husband died at sea about three weeks after leaving San Francisco, and as none of the officers knew how to navigate a ship she assumed that duty herself and successfully piloted the vessel to this port. "I then went to bed, and the first intimation I had of Mr. Hatch's death was when I was told this morning by some painters that there was a man lying dead in the yard. I looked out and saw that it was Mr. Hatch."

MR. EURK DRAWS A FINE DISTINCTION.

Before the witness could sign her statement two gentlemen hurriedly pushed their was through the crowd. They proved to be brother in law Ferris and Mr. Jerome Buck, whom the former had retained as Mrs. Scofield's counsel. Nobody seemed to think about her husband, though at that time it was suspected that he had had a hand in the tragedy.

Mr. Buck asked to see the testimony his client had just given, and after looking it carefully over, he asked Mrs. Scofield it it was all correct. When she replied in the affirmative he asked if it was correct that she had gone up stairs with Mr. Hatch.

"No," she replied, in a hes:tating way, "that's not quite right. He went up stairs to see itthere were any burglars. I remained down stairstalking to my husband."

"But you certainly said you and he went up together," said Coroner Levy.

"Yes, I know I did," replied the witness; "but I means that he went up stairs first, and I followed him later."

She then signed the papers and stepped down, having her hand grasped by Mr. Ferris, Savings Banks in the South.

THE CONSTITUTION has been urging upon the attention of our law-makers for several years past the necessity of establishing, under the supervision of the state, a system of savings banks similar to the institutions that are so popular at the north, especially in New England.

The savings banks of the north and east are established and operated under the supervision of the state, and they have achieved phenomenal success, not merely because they are savings institutions, but because the state itself has them under its watchful eye.

The accumulations piled up in the savings banks of the north and east show that the humble working people are carrying on all the great enterprises of the country. They have more capital than the men who are known as capitalists, and their money finds its way into channels where it is most needed to develop the resources of the country. The savings banks are restricted to safe investments by the terms of the law under which they operate, and the result is that the capital which they have to loan can only be invested in safe and legitimate enterprises.

We learn from the Manufacturers' Record that Baltimore, in a quiet way, has developed some institutions in this line that are s successful in their way as the savings banks of the north and east. "The Old Bank" of Baltimore, for instance, has a charter dating back to 1818, and its deposits amount to about $16,000,000. Then there is the Eutaw, the Central, the Metropolitan, the Maryland, the German, the Provident and the Hopkins Place, all well managed and successful.

The Provident has departed from the old plan, and, in consequence, it is one of the most successful institutions in the country. Its place of business is not confined to the center of the city. It has seven branch offices, and these offices are kept open on Saturday evenings until a late hour. over, it receives any sum from ten to the largest that is offered.

Whether the savings banks of Baltimore are under state regulation we do not know, but no harm would be done if the state of Georgia, following the example of other states, should provide for the establishment of savings institutions to be operated under the supervision of the state.

I never at any time during the caucus referred to Judge Hilly er as a prohibitionist. After we had se octed the district delegates and indersed four dele two members of the state executive committee, and Mr. T. P. Westmoreland was suggested as a suitable man from Fulton; and in reply to some one's question as to who Mr. Westmoreland was, I stated that he was a prominent Atlanta hawyer, a good man, a good democrat and was chairman of the prohibition campaign committee when Aflanta went "dry." and that he was a prohibitionist. The issue of "wet and dry" was not made in the selection of delegates in the fifth district caucus so 'far as I know.

The Columbus, Ohio, Plan Extract from a private letter to H. M. Ses-ons, from Columbus, Ohio, May 7th. He said: "Because it seemed impracticable and because of public opinion as to the propriety.

and because of public opinion as to the propriety." Think of that. The propriety of closing the saloons on Sunday. Well, Judge Pugh ordered that a writ of mandamus issued to the mayor and police commissioners, commanding them to enforce the law. The writ was served, and after a long quibling and questioning as to the penalty if they did not enforce it, they agreed to enforce the law. So yesterday was the first quiet Sunday Columbus has had in years. The saloons were almost entirely closed. Places just out of the corporation had a thriving trade, but they are just as guilty of violating the state law, and will doubtless have to suffer for it.

Dr. Washington Gladden gave a fine talk last night on "Who Rules Columbus" He had a good audience, many peominent men being present, and arcused a good deal of enthusiasm.

The midnight closing ordinance, just passed, goes into effect tonight. Tomorrow evening a mass meeting of cr'er loving and righteous people is called at the city hall by the "Citizens' League," an organization which has stirred up Sunday and midnight closing measures. Two remarkable conventions have met and adjourned in Atlanta in the past two days. One of these declared that temperance was not a local issue and that the line should be drawn in every county ust be made in national delegates and in party platforms. The prospective spirit which ruled the cominated the other. One was all temperance, the other all tariff, and between the two it is feared the party in the state has been weakened in the home

It is none the less the champion of his re-election now. We believe the president is more in need of carnet and active supporters now than ever. Unfortunately the state convention seemed to be laboring under the impression that the presidential election this year would be confined to Georgia. This was a serious mistake. There are doubtful states and removed mistake. Very Low Water in Lake Michigan

From the Chicago Tribune. "The lake will probably average a foot lower his year than last," City Engineer Northway said yesterday, "and last year the average was six-tenthi of a foot lower than in 1886. There is no explana-tion of this fact that I know of. The averages of the depth of water in the great lakes run in cycle-of nine years each—that is, there is a down-shoot forlnine years and then an up-shoot for the same period. We now seem to be near the bottom of the period. We now seem to be near the bottom of the down-shoot. There is nothing in the explanation put forward by some vesselmen that the lakes are being drained by the deepening of the channel in the rivers between Lakes Huron and Eric. There was low water before these rivers were disturbed, and there has been high water since they were deepened. No; the stage of water in the great lakes depends on some cause we know nothing of, and whose effects we can only see. Low stage of water of rhose effects we can only see. Low stage of water in 1847 is the city's data or standard. The average stage of water for 1887 compared with this standard was 3.07 feet, and the lowest 1.30 feet. We have this spring gone below the lowest stage of last year, and will get under the low mark of 1847."

When the judge got to the courthouse the whole bar jumped on to him and guyed him unmercifully.

They got him madder than a hornet, and, after standing it about as long as he could without fighting, he gathered up his umbrella and hat and started for the hotel. Just as he was in the middle of the same crossing he meta lady, but he wasn't to be fooled again by deceptive appearance, so, with a flourish of his umbrella, he shouted: "Hwa there, depress to the walk!" d—n ye! get off the walk!"

SOMETHING ABOUT DIAMONDS.

Professor H. Carvill Lewis, of Philadelphia fessor of mineralogy at the Academy of Natural ences and of geology at Haverford college, has n in the city some days, looking into the history of the "Atlanta diamond." "Some of the statements made heretofore abou that stone are incorrect," said Professor Lewis last evening. "The facts are these: The stone was found in April of last year on the place of Daniel Light, three-fourths of a mile northwest of Morrow station, three-fourths of a mile northwest of Morrow station, in Clayton county, thireen miles south of Atlanta. It was found by Lewis M. Parker, a tenant on the land. It has passed through several, and is now owned by Mr. W. M. Scott, I believe, who has sent it to Tiffiny & Co., of New York. I have received a telegram from them stating that it is a genulus diamond. I nuderstand that it weighs in its present state a little more than four karsts."

more than four karats."

"I have made a thorough examination of the locality where it was found with a view to comparing the locality with the other localities in eastern United States where diamonds have been found. The foundations there are identical with those of Hall and White counties in this state, and the different localities in North Carolina where liamonds have been found, I have made a thorough study of all these localities for the purpose of finding something that would aid in determining the matrix of the diamond. That, you know, is a disputed question in geology. Nobody knows in what rocks diamonds occur excepting those in Kimberly, South Atrica. There they are found in volcanic matter that resembles decomposed green mud. That is a wonderful place. More than six tons of diamonds have been taken from there already and it gets richer as they go deeper."

"The formations in eastern portions of the United States where diamonds have been found are entirely different from those in South Africa. They resemble more nearly that o the diamond fields of Brazil, and of parts of India the damond heds of Brank, and of parts of India. It is a fact not generally known that the American diamonds are much older than those of Africa, and if they ever occurred in rock similar to that in Kimberly, there is nothing to indicate it now. The rocks in American localities are mainly granitic.

"Other diamonds may be found where this Atlanta diamond was found, and they may not. The formations indicate that there is not as great a probability of their being found on not as great a probability of their being found on neighboring properties. I have visited all the dia-mond localities in eastern United States and have traced the history, as thoroughly as spossible, of all the diamonds that have beenfound in each. Not counting a few little ones found in Georgia pol note than a dozen diamonds which are author have been found in Georgia and North Carolina.

Of these not more than four or five are known to be in existence. Many romantic stories are told about these-about finding them and losing them. An Atlanta lady now wears in a ring one of the best specimens ever found in Georgia. Another Georgia lady would not marry until her prospective husband gave her a ring with a Georgia diamond for "Several of the stones have been lost, and I cound that they had been destroyed by ignorant people who were attempting to test them. The seems to be a general impression that a diamond will not break if struck, and at least two of wha were supposed to be good specimens were broken by being hit with a hammer on an anvil. While the liamond is very hard it is also brittle, and can be easily cracked and destroyed with a hammer. The best test is to see if it will scratch corundum. Any hing that will scratch corundum is a diamond Corundum is the next hardest mineral known and s. when polished, either ruby or sapphire, ough state it is used as emery."

Professor Lewis has returned to Philadelphia. He has in preparation a lecture upon the American dia-monds and the matrix of the diamond, which he will deliver before the Academy of Natural Sciences

On the Fisheries Proposed Treaty

The Majority Thinks the Senate Shoul Have Been Consulted in the Selection of ners-The Minority Favor

WASHINGTON, May 10.-The senate has re moved the injunction of secrecy from the re-port of the committee on foreign relations upon the fisheries treaty. The majority states that it has had the proposed treaty under careful and deliberate consideration, and that it re-turns herewith a resolution in ordinary form opinion that said resolution ought not to be adopted.

opinion that said resolution ought not to be adopted.

The report quotes the retaliation act of March, 1887, and says:

So far as is-known to the committee, no step whatever was taken by the president to put this law into execution, but negotiations were initiated and continued to the apparent end of accomplishing what congress had thought it unfit to undertake, in such a way, an adjustment of these difficulties by a diplomatic course of securing part of American rights, at the expense of yielding other and the most fundamental and important of them. These negotiations culminated in the appointment by the president during the recess of the sonate, the 22d of November, 1887, only ten days before the meeting of congress, of three plenipotentiaries to consider with like plenipotentiaries appointed by her majesty, the whole subject with the view of coming to a solution thereof. The plenipotentiaries, thus created, began their real work at Washington, while both houses of congress were sitting, and without any communication by the president in his annual message on the meeting of congress, or otherwise, of the fact that such important and extraordinary operations were in progress, or that very grave interests of the United States had been placed in the custody of the gentle, men whose names had not even been communicated to it. These "plenipotentiaries" came to the conclusion of their labors on the 15th of February, 1888, and the office of the "plenipotentiaries" terminated and a result was reached without the advice and consent of the sentet having been asked, or taken, concerning the selection of these public ministers, and without any communication to either house of congress concerning this most important subject. It is not difficult to see that the vit times when the president of the United States may be under the influence of foreign and adverse interests such a course of procedure might result in great disaster to the interests and even the safety of our government and our people. The committee thinks it due It due to the smate to state that c ntrary (as it be lieves) to the universal practice of the executive it connection with the consideration of treaties when the senate has asked for all the papers and information in detail concerning the progress of negotiations, the executive has not thought if for the "public interest" in this instance to communicate all such papers and detailed information to the senate, although the senate requested and it was stated in reply to the resolution of request that the deliberations of the plenipotentiaries were in confidence and "that only the results should be announced and such matters as the joint protocolists should sign under direction of the plenipoten olists should sign under direction of the pienipoten-tiaries."

The committee devotes other twenty pages to a detailed discussion of the provisions of the treaty, and formulates fifteen suggestions adverse to the wisdom of ratifying this treaty, and says others might readily be made, but the committee thinks it unnecessary to go into them.

The committee cannot but hope that if these ill advised negotiations, which, as is known to all the world, cannot properly commit the United States in any degree until they shall have received the conwords, cannot properly commit the United States in any degree until they shall have received the constitutional assent of the senate, shall fail to meet the approval of this body, her malesty's government will take measures so secure justice and fair treatment in her North American dominions to American vessels and American citizens, in all respects, and under all circumstances, and that government will see the justice and propriety of according to American vessels engaged in the business of fishing all commercial rights and facilities in her North American ports that are so freely and cheerfully accorded to ner own in ports of the United States and thus the friendship and good feeling which ought to extabilished and secured.

The minority sava:

tablished and secured.

The minority says:

"Two objections to this treaty were stated in committee. That it had been negotiated and signed by persons who were not duly empowered under the constitution and laws of the United States to conduct and conclude the treaty. That the treaty, on its merits, should not be ratified by the senate.

To meet the first objection, a member of the minority of the committee introduced the following resolution:

ority of the committee introduced the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the treaty signed by Thomas F. Bayard, William L. Putnam and James B. Angell, as plenipotentiaries of the United States, in conjunction with the British plenipotentiaries, on the 15th day of February, 1888, and sent to the senate by the president as the treaty duly negotiated for the consideration and action of the senate, is properly authenticated as the treaty made by the president of the United States, acting within his constitutional powers, and is lawful and valid as negotiated."

The purpose of this resolution was to bring before

The purpose of this resolution was to bring before The purpose of this resolution was to oring perore the seniate in distinct form the recommendation of the committee as to the merits of the treaty apart from any collateral matter relating to the negotiation of the instrument.

In committee this resolution was laid upon the table and thereby any recommendation as to the question it presents, in answer to the first objection to treaty as above stated was avoided.

In comm tree this resolution was laid upon the table and thereby any recommendation as to the question it presents, in answer to the first objection to treaty, as above stated, was avoided.

The minority of the committee hold that it is entirely competent for the majority in the senate to declare that a treaty negotiated and signed in proper manner, and by persons dnly qualified, or otherwise, to return it to the president as a paper that does not call into exercise the power and jurisdiction of the senate upon the question of its ratification by them, and if the majority in senate shall declare that the treaty is sent to the senate by the president, and is duly signed and authenticated, or, if no objection to it on that ground is made, then the subject matter of treaty is in order, and should be considered by the senate. It is not disputed or, so far as undersigned are informed, doubted by any one, that he senate may accept and ratify, on the part of the United States, any treaty that the president has made with a foreign government that he sends to the senate for consideration, and may waive any informality attending its negotiation. In accepting a paper sent to the senate by the president as a treaty, and by referring the same to its committee, the senate, have virtually waived any informality, if there is any in the negotiation, and the signing of the instrument the undersigned conceive that the whole duly of the committee was to consider and report upon the merits of the treaty. The undersigned believe that it is better for our country that the treaty should be ratified and that they are equally convinced that the entire class of our people who are actively engaged in our North Atlantic fishing industry will be benefitted by its ratification.

The minority then enters upon a historical argument of the fishery question from the treaty of 1818 and gives a general statement argument of the fishery question from the treaty of 1818 and gives a general statement of the situation which resulted from a misunof the situation which restrict from a misun-derstanding as to the true meaning of the treaty of 1818. It refers to the efforts of our diplomatists to compose the troublesome ques-tions growing out of article one of the treaty of 1818 and says:

Instead of a nearer approach to such an under standing as a true and mutually acceptable construction of the first article of the treaty wider divergence of opinion and more determined content ton have characterized the diplomacy of both treaty powers. We seem now to have reached the point whore we must seek to allay the growing bitterness of these differences by a friendly, sincere and mutually respectful cousideration of the positions assumed by each government, or else we must enforce our views by a vigorous means of retaliation.

It is quite clear that until we are free from the obligations of the treaty of 1818 they are part of our supreme law, which no department of our government can violate without violating our constitution. As the treaty is partial in renunciation of our rights of the common fishery, partitioned to use as a part of the country, whose independence we established, we cannot, by any means short of a successful war, reinstate the United States by our own acts in the enjoyment of a right that was so reverenced.

The undersigned do not find it necessary to answer in detail the various objections surged in committee established, we cannot, by any means and one successful war, reinstate the United States by our own acts in the enjoyment of a right that was so reverenced.

The undersigned do not find it necessary to answer in detail the various objections urged in committee by the senators opposed to ratification of the treaty, because no amendment was offered to indicate trait the treaty could be so improved so as to gain the support of any member of the majority of the committee. The undersigned understand the dissent from this negotiation is directed to it as an entirety. This dissent is based, in part, upon the opinion of some members of the majority that the president should not have entered upon any negotiation in view of the resolution adopted by the senate on the third day of February, 1886, and the opinion of congress as it was expressed in the non-intercourse act approved March 3d, 1887.

Under the misunderstandings of the past we have on both sides sent feets to these waters to protect our fishermen against each other and against the unifiendly conduct of the local government. If these questions are left open and a commercial war inaugurated through the measure of retaliation, many ships and guns will be needed to keep peaceful ishermen off the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland. The danger in this direction does not come from the desire of either government to promote war, but from their inability to prevent its in tiation through the personal hostilities of men associated in the use of common rights and privileges and stimulated by rivalries which are encouraged by the laws of retaliation enacted by their respective governments. These are some of the dangers against which this treaty wisely makes safe provisions.

The minority report concludes:

The treaty is a just and fair settlement. There is no fault in the manner of its negotiation, and the president has not in any way exceeded his constitutional powers or withheld any courtesy due to the senate in the respect of agents selected by him to conduct the negot

The Condition of Crops.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The report of th WASHINGTON, May 10.—The report of the department of agriculture says that the low temperature and deficient rainfall, with desirg winds and some frost, have reduced the condition of winter wheat in the central states. It has also been cool on the Atlantic coast, and not favorable to improvement, and yet the plant has nearly held its own in this region. On the Pacific coast only medium development is severated.

ment is reported.

In the southern states the changes are slight several averages being the same as last month. Pennsylvania shows a decline of a few points, New York 16: Ohio 12; Michigan 12; Indiana 6; Illinois 7; Missouri 2; Kansas 3. The gener. 1 average is reduced nine points, from 82 to 73 Last year's condition was reduced from 88.1 in April to 83.8 in May. The state averages of winter wheat in the principal states are as follows: New York, 76; Pennsylvania, 87; Virginia, 90; Ohio, 56; Michigan, 64; Indiana, 59; Illinois, 57; Missouri, 80; Kansas, 94; Tex-

Spring plowing is not quite so well advanced as usual. It is relatively later in the more northern states of the Atlantic coast, slightly later than usual in the middle states, and scarcely up to a full average in the south. Its progress is an average in the Ohio valley, but late in the northwest, especially in Dakota.

Cotton planting was delayed by an excess of moisture in February and low temperature in March, the soil not being in condition for early planting Delay was the greatest in Texas and Louisiana. In Arkansas, Tennessee and North Carolina from four to six per cent less than usual was planted on the first of May. An investigation of the rate of wages of agricultural labor shows that no material change has occurred since the last previous inquiry in May, 1885. There is a slight increase in New Newland, in the arribor tier of states from England, in the northern tier of states from Michigan westward and in some of the south-ern states; there is no appreciable change in the central states.

Members of the House Who Were Slow in WASHINGTON, May 10 .- The senate commitwashington, may lo.—The senae commit-tee on commerce took up the river and harbor bill today and informally discussed the plan of procedure in regard to it. It was made known that some thirty or forty members of the house have asked to be heard in advocacy of appropriations, which they failed to get into the measure, when it was before that body. It was suggested that inasmuch as the house had the bill in its hands for three months, alhad the bill in its hands for three months, allowing no senators to make arguments before its committee and had finally passed it under a suspension of rules, it would be only right and fair for the house to rest satisfied with what the senate does in the matter. It was also made known that delegations from many cities had asked for hearings in respect to the need of works in their localities. The committee concluded that to grant all the hearings asked would seriously embarrass and delay the committee's work, and it was, therefore, determined not to grant any hearing to other termined not to grant any hearing to other congressmen or delegations except to one or two delegations, for which arrangements have already been made. The committee will begin ctive work on the bill next Saturday morning

Pocono, Pa., May 6.—Willie Altemose, aged fourteen, son of Jacob Altemose, living on a clearing in the woods of Tunkhannock township, went out one day last week to chop wood a hall mile or so from the house. mose was surprised and skeptical, but the boy showed him the bloody blade of his ax and assured him that he had just killed toree bears with it. Altemose went with his son, and at the side of a big fallen hemlock, almost within sight of the house, he saw the bodies of three bears, one a very large one and the others yearling cubs.

The boy said he had commenced chopping on the fallen tree when the big bear jumped out from beneath it and made a rush for him. He buried the ax in its skull, and another blow killed the bear. The boy then looked in under the tree and saw the two smaller bears crouching there. He routed them out and attacked them. One of them showed fight but the other slouched away. The boy killed the one as quickly as he had the big bear and then gave chase to the other and despatched it in the same way. He said he was not more than ten minutes in making away with the three bears, and he cid not show the least excitement over his exploit. He seemed to regard it as something anyone could have done under the circumstances, and after the bears had been carried to the house he retuined to his work, as if nothing had happened. The old bear weighed over 300 pounds.

No business of great importance was transacted by the aldermanic meeting yesterday. The Trial of Mrs. Johnson-She is Placed Under $50 Bond for Cheating and Neither Mr. High nor Mr. Scott, the latter being the gentleman in whose name the prose-cution has been carried on, were present. As the clock struck four the judge took his seat, and you could have heard a pin drop as seat, and you could have heard a pin drop as he began speaking.

"I would be glad if I could avoid making a decision in this case," said he. "It has aroused all my sympathy, but I have done as I believe the law directs, regardless of other consideration. From the authorities quoted I don't believe the charge of larceny holds good—for the fact that there was a consent on the part of Mr. High's agent, and it made no difference even though that consent was obtained by a subterfuge. But if the evidence in any case develops an offense other than the one charged it is my duly to bind the party over. If there is anything in this case, it is cheating and swindling. I shall require a bond of $50 for cheating and swindling."

As the judge finished speaking all eyes were turned towards the little woman in black. She was perfectly self-possessed, and talked calmly about the matter a minute later.

"I guess you won't have any trouble about that bond?" remarked Mr. Gray.

"No," said Mr. J. M. McAlister, "she won't have any trouble about that bond?" remarked Mr. Gray.

Judge Manning said a short while before the trial yesterday to Mr. J. A. Gray, Mrs. Johnson's attorney;

"If Mrs. Johnson will have the case post-poned until tomorrow morning, and leave the state for thirty days, nothing more will be done about it."

"But what about the bond?" asked the

HOME, SWEET HOME.

A Reminiscence of the Battle of Chancellors.

From the Commercial Gazette. A quarter of a century ago last night the Army of the Potomac, under Fighting Joe Hooker, laid on the north bank of the Rappahannock opposed by the confederate army under General Lecon the opposite bank. The confederate bands were playing 'Dixie,' which was wildly cheered. A union band at the Lacy house played "The Star Spangled Banner," which was cheered by the fed-eral troops who laid ready to cross the river. A yankee regiment began playing "John Brown's Body Lies a-Moldering in the Grave," which was vocally rest onded to by members of the regiment.

The confederates began their famous tune, which always exasperated the union veteran when he heard its taunting words, viz.:

I'm just from old Manassas,
With a pocket full of fun;
I killed forty yankees
With a single-barreled gun.
It makes no dif-a-bitt-rance

Amidst derisive howls on both sides of the river.

While the hubbub was at it height the shrill scream of a locomotive was heard rounding the curve near Stoneman switch, three miles and a half from Falmouth station. When the troops left the train and pitched tents in the rear of the Lecy house at 10 o'clock at night, the band begin to play 'Home, Sweet Home," As the last note died away in the distance one vast shout of approval from two hundred thousand veterans on both sides of the Rappahannock ascended heavenward and to the wings of each army eighteen miles distant. The tollowing night at 9 o'clock twenty-two thousand veterans on both sides who had cheered in union the previous evening, laid cold in dea, h or mangled

The Ferocious Newfoundland.

On Saturday morning last George Hummel. a Cincinnati baker, who had become insanely jeal-ous of his young and pretty wife, shot himself in the breast and now lies dying at his home en Mound street in that city, if he be not already dead. When he was picked up in the street he was carried into his house and placed on a bed just back of the diningroom, where he was visited by Dr. Charles S. Muscroft, one of the most noted surgeons in the s. Museroft, one of the most noted surgeons in the west, who pronounced the wounds fatal. Dr. Museroft, an hour or two after making this visit, fell dead in his office while attending to another pattent. In the meantime a monster Newfoundland dog, belonging to Hummel, had crowded his way into the room of the sufeide and taken a position would be presented from which, it was found the contract for which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form which it was found to contract the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the sufficient form the suferior form the suf dog, belonging to Hummel, had crowded his way into the room of the suicide and taken a position near his master, from which it was found impossible by fair means to dislodge him. Not only did the dog refuse to leave his wounded mister's side, but he would not allow any one to come into his room. A robice nan went to the door and was about to kill the animal, but was prevented by the young wife, who funcies that also could coax the dog out with food. While this was coig on Hummel, who ay bleeding profusely from the lungs, was calling feebly for wat.r. Beforethe wife, who had left to get some pieces of meat for the dog, had returned, a neighbor attempted to reach Hummel's side, but was prevented by the dog, which sprang upon him and bit him severely on one of his wrists. He had just succeeded in releasing himself from the infuriated beast and in reaching the door when Mrs. Hummel returned. In spite of all warning the brave little woman entered the apartment, and calling to the dog, threw him some pieces of meat. For a moment or two it looked as if the dog would allow the wife to reach her husband, but before even she could realize fully the great dauger she was in the brute had sprung upon ber and fixed his teeth in her arm. Then came a terrifies struggle, in which the poor woman was terribly mangled in sight of her now pitying husband, who Jay there powerless to help her, with the blood gushing out of his mouth and nose from sheer excitement. The dog at last released his hold and retreated under the dog at last released his hold and retreated under the by wounded that it is hardly possibly that she can burvice. In the end the dog had to be killed by policemen, who came upon the seene and shot him as he stood glaring at them from his master's betaled, effant and jealous of his charge to the very last.

THE TOURNEY KNIGHTS Enjoy Another Day of Rare Sport

at Piedmont Park. The Individual Contests -Two Lively Races-lliant Coronation Ceremonies at De-Give's-The Military Ball. The first cavalry festival ever attempted in Georgia is now a thing of the past. It ended more brilliantly than it started, and everybody declares that its success was phenomenal.

The programme, as announced in The Con-STITUTION previous to the tournament, was carried out strictly. There was not one omission or deviation. And the result has given general satisfaction. Even the unsuccessful knights are perfectly satisfied. They made it warm for the victors, and made it warm for the victors, and enjoyed two days of rare sport. Next year they will return. The gallant horsemen have given an exhibition of great interest to the residents of Atlanta. It is not to be denied that the crowds at the park were not so large as they should have been, but still the attendance was good. Many of the most prominent citizens of the state have been in attendance upon the tournament. The spirited contests have been of rare interest to the ladies, who still cherish the old-time chiv-alry, and who admire the knightly endeavors of the fearless horsemen. They were delighted with the tourney and testified their enthusiasm by waving handkerchiefs, and applaude 1 the torious competitors as they dashed past the grand stand.

The attendance at the park yesterday was not quite so large as it was the first day of the tournament. The exercises were, however, much more interesting than they were the opening day. The contests were close and exciting.

The start was a fair one, and the horses kept together for a few seconds. Then the mag ridden by Mr. Stewart pressed to the front, followed closely by the beautiful white thoroughbred which Captain Stoney rode. The race grew still more exciting as the horses came around the home stretch. Captain Stoney came in about four lengths ahead of Mr. Stewart. Time, 50 seconds.

The successful teams and the individual prize-takers went to,the judges' stand and were paid the prizes in checks.

This ended the tournament. The crowd dispersed, and the cavalrymen formed in line and galloped to the city.

THE CORONATION.

The coronation ceremonies in DeGive's opera house last night were unique. There was a very large crowd of spectators present, and they enjoyed keenly the exercises. There was considerable delay in starting, and people grew tired before the entertainment actually began. There was a fine orchestra, which caused the time to pass much more pleasantly and rapidly than it would have passed otherwise.

The review of the troops on the stage was an imposing spectacle. The troops were in full uniform and were marching to the coronation. The curtain went down and the scenes were shifted. The officers of the various companies were standing on an elevation and the privates and non-commissioned officers stood on the platform. At the signal the coronation ceremonies began by the ushering in of the royal couples.

Mr. Porter King made an eloquent oration to the queen and her maids of honor. His address was full of poetry, wit and wisdom, and was enjoyed heartily by all present. The ladies to whom it was spoken were especially delighted, and they showered pretty compliments upon the gifted young orator. The audience was unsparing in its applause.

she bowed graciously in recognition of the honor.

The maids were in turn crowned, and they, too, expressed their pleasure by modest bows. Mr. King then addressed a few ringing words to the victorious knights.

Lioutenant Livingston, of Darien, made a gallant little speech which elicited much applause. He presented to the queen a beautiful golden star, studded with gems. He then presented the McIntosh Light Dragoons with a sword, covered with roses. This he placed in the hands of the queen, and asked her. to keep it in trust for the company. All this was pretty, and afforded the crowd much pleasure. Miss Mansfield, the recipient of all these honors, expressed her thanks as follows:

As the shell cast upon the beach ever sings of its home in the sea, so memory from its coral depths will ever | zocham the joyous recollections of the honor conferred upon me in being crowned queen of the tournament by so valiant a knight and in so brilliant a contest. This crown is the precious emblem of your chivalry and skill, and long after the beauty of the flowers have faded the sweet remembrance of this occasion will live in my heart, which will ever cherish with fondest pride the compliment you have paid me.

Dear friends, as you are all aware, the McIntosh Light Dragoon have proven victorious over most worthy competitors, men of chivairy, courage and honor, and that they should have triumphed and do grand an assemblage, and over so noble competitors, is indeed a glorious victory!

Dear company, in appreciation of the honor bestowed upon me, allow me to present you this wreath in token of your valor and knighty fame. The flowers will soon fade, but the lustre of this victory will ever be remembeted and become brighter as the fame of your triumph is heraled abroad.

May your swords never be tarnished with defeat but always flash brightly in the sunlight of victory.

THE BALL.

After the exercises in the operahouse were concluded the queen, her maids of honor, the knights and many others repaired to the ball room of the Kimball house.

The royal couple opened the ball, occupying the floor by themselves. Then the dancing became general and was indulged in till a very late hour.

The scene was one of unusual brilliancy. The rich and varied toilettes of the ladies and the showy uniforms of the soldiers made a kaleidascope of is surpassing beauty. Rarely has a more brilliant scene been witnessed in any hall seed of the soldiers.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen is

The Ancient Order of United Workmen is the oldest beneficiary organization and extends all throughout the United States and the dominion of Canada.

It was organized in the city of Meadville, Pa., October 27th, 1868, with thirteen members, and has grown since to the gigantic number of 202,127 on April 1st, 1888.

The objects of the order are to unite white male persons over twenty-one and under fifty years of age, regardless of nationality, political preferences, or denominational distinctions, into a fraternal brotherhood, the members of which recognize and believe in the existence of a Supreme Being, the creator and preserver of the universe; to endeavor to improve the moral, intellectual and social condition of its members: to create funds in the aid of the members during sickness, and to pay a benefit of $2,000 to the beneficiaries of its deceased members, and to generally care for the living and hurz the dead. Total its deceased members, and to generally care for the living and bury the dead. Total amount paid for benefit since organization of

THE SOCIETY WORLD.

Mrs. Ridley's Reception Yesterday Afternoon.

Other Events of Interest-Entertainments to Take Place in the Near Future-

A "yellow dinner" was given yesterday at 2 o'clock by Mrs. Dr. Ridley at her beautiful bome on Peachtree street. The parlors, halls and dining room were artistically decorated in yellow hangings and with flowers. In the front parlor were innumerable roses of all colors, but the yellow ones predominated. Yellow vines clambered almost to the ceiling over the mantel. In this room all the hangings were yellow, as also were the tidies, cushions and ribbons.

A more beautifully decorated place than the diningroom could not be imagined. One on enfering the room could not fail to be struck with its beauty. On the mantelpiece was a huge butterfly of flowers, which was in itself a work of art. The wings measured two feet across, and were composed of flastursians, rose buds and golden cedar. Bright roses placed here and there relieved the yellow, and as it spread its wings automatically, one could almost imagine himself looking at a real giant butterfly. The horns were composed of long, slim ferns. This was much admired by the guests.

On the center table was an immense pyramid of flowers, all yellow. This was formed of lilies, arbuteilons, Marchael-Neil roses; and over-reaching the whole was a calla, with variegated given and gold leaves.

the whole was a calla, with variegated green and gold leaves.

The chandeliers were beautifully entwined with passion flower, vines and smilax. Each guest had a lovely bouquet of exquisite yellow flowers placed at her plate, together with a yellow card with her name on it, painted by Lycett. All the corners of the rooms were hidden by flowers, yellow predominating. On the dining tables were wax candles of yellow, and placed in heavily gilded candlesticks.

The favors were beautiful and well gotten up.
They were tiny yellow willow baskets, tied with moire ribbon of same color, filled with Huyer's can-

E. S. McCandless, Dick Reist, S. H. Venable, and Clark Howell, Sr., will leave for Fayette-ville this morning where they will spend two or three days fishing. They have a big tent, which will be put up tonight. They have invited a num-ber of prominent citizens down to Fayetteville to to dine with them tomorrow, and promise barbe-cued pig and fried fish as inducements. It need not be stated that they do not carry the pig with them. They rely on Fayette county for that.

Fas hion's decree has gone forth, and it will Fas hion's decree has gone forth, and it will be interesting to the ladies to know that though they may wear "a bee in their bonnet" they can no longer wear a bird. This benevolent edict comes in good time to save from the hand of the destroyer the last scion of the race of humming birds, and birds of Paradise. The great forests of our own, and almost every other country, have been ransacked and have had to yield up their feathered treasures to get the bedger at the voters of feshion. to adorn the head-gear of the votary of fashion. Now the sweet songsters can fly awhile in peace, as a truce has been sounded, and for a season or two the-flower gardens will have their fragrant blossoms reproduced in all their glory of silk and muslin and fashioned by the cunning hand of the artificial flower maker will be used in every conceivable shape and color on the hats and bonnets of the ladies.

A story is going the rounds in social circles that is somewhat startling as to the wonderful make-up of a young lady prominent in society. The mould in which she had been cast was very insatisfactory, both to herself and her parents, who finally concluded to try the effects of foreign travel for their daughter. After quite a lengthy absence the family returned, and, to the great astonishment of her former friends, the girl was completely changed. From a tall, angular form she had be ome well rounded and with a decided broadening of the shoulders. After a while it was whispered around that while in Paris the girl had been placed in the hands of a model-maker, who for the promise of a large sum agreed to construct a wire figure of the desired proportions. This was very in-geniously made to open down the back, and was of such soft, fine material that it could not be detected but by very close serutiny. This is something nev in the science of anatomy. The old way has the skeleton on the inside; this way it has the attraction of novelty.

cnne Reservation.

From the St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

She is here. Not the character about whom Haggard wrote, but Miss Cora Belle Fellows-Campbell, the young lady who sacrificed home ties to become the wife of Samuel Campbell, better known as Chaska. Mrs. Campbell was attired in a neat black satin dress trimmed with paesementerie. She is twenty-eight years old, is not pretty, but fair-looking. One pretty feature about her face is her beautiful, regular-set teeth. She is apparently about five feet four inches in hight. Chaska, the sly young Lothario who wooed and won her, lounged on a divan apparently contented with his surroundings. He were a buckskin shirt and moccasins trimmed with beads. He wore common plebeian pants, which goes to show that he is becoming civilized by the influence of his pale-faced bride. He is six feet two inches in height, has the regulation. He is 25 years of age. His face shows marks of smallpox, but the prominent cheek bones, characteristic of the Indian, are not so noticeable. He speaks fairly good English, writes plainly, and seems rather bright, but yesterday he was a stranger in a strange land under exceedingly strange circumstances, and he was not in a talkative mood. In fact, a short, gruff "yes" or "no" was about the only answer that could be gotten from him. But his wife is a brilliant and entertaining conversationalist. Mrs. Campbell chatted pleasantly with all the calleers. When asked on what date they were gotten from him. But his wife is a brilliant and entertaining conversationalist. Mrs. Campbell chatted pleasantly with all the callers. When asked on what date they were married she replied: "We were married March 16 at St. Stephen's by the Rev. Dr. Hauford, an Episcopal rector. We have been married on so many different dates by the newspapers that I hardly know myself when we were married."

We were married."

Mrs. Campbell has with her their marriage certificate to prove the date, and also to assure doubting ones that they are the much advertised couple. When asked about her parents she said that of course they had been opposed to the marriage. When she left Washington, about three years ago, she was cautioned not to fall in love with an Indian. When she married Chaska her mother wrote telling her that she would not disown her, but that their correspondence must cease. Then, when it became known that efforts were being made to induce her to go on exhibition, her mother wrote that if she took this last step her daughter and herself would be obliged to leave the country. They could not remain in Washing ton with such a social disgrace hanging over them. Mrs. Campbell, continuing, said:

"I understand father has decided to accept an offer to go to South America. I know just what I am doing. I knew that my parents would not support me now. Influences have been brought to bear, so that I will probably lose my school. My husband has no money, but I love him, and I saw this chance to make enough money to buy a farm and make us independent, so I grasped this opportunity."

Mrs. Campbell, while not anxious to talk to strangers, answered all questions pleasantly and proved herself an entertaining lady. She has with her a number of letters which she has received since her marriage and some of are real curiosities. One gentleman writes, and, after admiring her for her pluck in marwe were married."

Canadian Catarth Cure Co.:

Gentlamen—My wife was a great sufferer with Catarth for over two years. She has been a little troubled ever since she was a child with the disease. About two years ago we were in Mississippi, and while there she was taken down with catarthal fever; we had three of the best physicians we could get. They broke the fever and left her the worst case of catarth of the bead I ever saw. Her nose ran profusely, and for a year I despaired of her evergetting well. I tried several doctors and they could not cure her, and used every catarth remedy I could hear of. I spent over $50 the past year for remedies, and all to no effect. At last it became so offensive that you could hardly remain where she was. I offered $1,000 to any doctor who would cure her (and that would have left us homeless), but I would not have cared for that if she could only be cured. We saw an advertisement in the Atlanta Constitution of "Canadian Catarth Curo," and thought we would try it, and went to your office, when you gave my wife a small sample bottle of your remedy, and told us to come and get a large bottle when that was out. I bought the large bottle, and before she had used all of the bottle she was entirely well, and her health fully restored, and now does more work than any woman I know. She used the medicine over six months ago, and there has not been the sightest return or the disease. I hope everybody that has catarth may find you and be cured. I am a traveling man and have told a great many of your wonderful cure. Your truly, Macon, Ga., May 10.—[Special.]—News has been received from Washington stating that fwo well known Macon sports—Mesars. Swartz and Harbaum—are in that place, and are doing the town on horse racing and other sporting events. "Hominy Bill," as he is known here, scooped a big pile at the races there last week, and has now gone to Baltimore to attend the races that are now in progress at that place. Harbaum is quoted as saying that his winnings on the racing this season will amount to over twenty thousand dollars.

NEW YORK STOCKS. Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, May 10.—The stock market was less Active today and generally weak and feverish throughout, with the exception of the first hour. The improved feeling of yesterday had some effect this morning, and first prices were generally from ¼ to ½ per cent above last night's figures for active stocks. Shorts made an effort to cover and further improvement was made in early trading. Gould stocks, however, were the special features of the morning, shooting up rapidly about 2 per centeach. but as quickly losing the advantage. The lack of support in Gould properties has had a demoralizing effect of late, but there were evidences that purchases were made for that purpose to a considerable extent today, and those stocks were the leaders of every rally. The bears removed their pressure about 1 p. m., and a better feeling was manifested throughout the list, and buying was indulged again, accompanied by an upward movement in prices. The last hour saw a renewal of the bear pressure The last hour saw a renewal of the bear pressure and Texas Pacific became extremely weak, and Reading followed, being weaker than at any previous time of the day. The close was quieter but weaker, at or near the lowest figures reached. There were a few fractional gains, but the active list is decidedly lower this evening. Texas Pacific is off 2½ per cent, Burlington and Quincy 2½, Reading 1½, Canada Southern, Lake Shore and Union Pacific 1½ each, Western Union and Northwestern 1½ each, New England 1 and others fractional amounts. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, May 10-[Special.]—There was nervous activity on 'change during the morning. The government crop report was expected to cut a big figure in the prices in wheat before the close of the day. in the prices in wheat before the close of the day. It was shortly after 11 o'clock when the government estimate on the wheat crop was made public here. There had been some selling to realize on pesterday's big buying, and prices were about ½c under last night. The moment the wires gave the figures there was a flurry on the floor, and everyone turned to the wheat pit. On the instant there was a craze to buy. July jumped at once from 86½c to 86½c, then in ten seconds to 87c, and this caused excitement enough to send the price to 87½c and to 87½c. ment enough to send the price to 57% and to 87% at the same moment in different parts of the pit. This was the top, and it was le up, and turn in three minutes. June sold up to 83% and December to 89%c. At 12 o'clock June was back to last night's price—85%c. July was down to 85%c—1c off from the top in the bulge and %c lower than last night, and December was back where it opened, at 88%c. The Washington report proved a boomerang. Many operators here and elsewhere had taken wheat since May with a view of unloading with profit on this report. Again professional traders discounted the effect by bulling the market yesterday. Still again, the country did not come in with a rush to sustain the buige, and a slash and tumble all in one hour was the result. There was a further dip in prices a few minutes before the close, and July sold at $55%, closing at $55%, $65. May closed at $39%ci June at elosing at 83%@859%. May closed at 83%ci June at 84%c and December at 97%@88c.

In corn today the range of prices during the first hour was the range of the day. The pit was almost entirely deserted, and trading was consequently light. The faeling, however, was rather firmer, and opening prices about ½c higher. May opened at 57c, anged between 57%@65%c and closed at 57c. July opened at 55%c, ranged between 55%@65%c and closed at 53%@55%.

Oats were quite active early, round lots coming on

Oats were quite active early, round lots coming on the market and were readily taken. The market subsequently became quiet and weaker. May ranged between the opening at 3414c and the close at 3374c. July sold at 32%@33c.

Provisions—In the absence of any special demand for each product, combined with restricted specula-tive interest, the bear side was regarded with in-creased favor. July pork opened at $14.25%, ranged at $14.25@$11.10 and closed at $14.17%. July lard held steady at 8.22% and June at 8.15@8.20, closing at 8.17%. Important Sales of City Real Estate Yesterday.

The Willis Peck Property, on Peachtree, Sold in Six Lots—Sale of Georgia Avenue Lots and Other Property—A Sale Today.

The sale of the Peck property, at the corner

The sale of the Feck property, at the corner of Peachtree and Cain streets, attracted a good sized crowd yesterday afternoon.

The property was divided into six lots, viz.:

No. 1, corner of Peachtree and Cain streets, 50x180; No. 2, exclusively on Peachtree, adoining Mr. Er. Lawshe, 50x180; No. 3, only on Cain street, facing the executive mansion, 40x100; No. 4, on Cain street, 40x100; No. 5, corner of Cain and Spring streets, 50x120, and No. 6, on Spring street, 50x120. A ten-foot alley lies between the rear part of lot 1 and 2, and the side of lot 3.

Colonel George Adair conducted the sale.
Before he settled down to business he regaled his hearers with one of his best talks, taking as his subject Atlanta real estate in general

A short time since a letter reached Chief Councily from a lady residing in the city, stating that at the house of a Mrs. Linn, at 226 Jones street, was an infant, and that the baby was being starved to death.

The matter was turned over to Captain Couch yesterday for investigation.

Mrs. Linn, a midwife by profession, was found at the designated place, but the baby was gone.

"It was carried to Chattanooga yesterday by Mrs. Hooly," explained Mrs. Linn, "and is now at the home of its aunt, a sister of the young lady."

young lady."
"How did the child happen to be here?"

asked the captain.
"It was born here," said Mrs. Linn. "It was nearly three months ago that a man came here with a lady, representing that they were man and wife. This I believed until after the man and wife. This I believed until after the child was born. That is about five weeks ago."
About three weeks ago the lady told me she was going off, and that she wanted to leave the baby with me. I began investigating, and soon learned that the young lady was not married, and that she lives in Atlanta. I did all I could for the child, but it was naturally weak and sidely and all this talk about our storying. I could for the child, but it was naturally weak and sickly, and all this talk about our starving the baby to death is false, every bit of it. The man is married and has a family. The young lady told me that she was ignorant of this until not long ago. She left her home under the pretext that she was to visit friends in Montgomery. The man is a railroad man, and would carry the letters to Montgomery and mail them there. In this way the

Yesterday morning, the young lady left her home in company with Mr. Lyons, and proceeding to the home of Mrs. Harper, on Wheat street, met a number of mutual friends, and the young gentleman then left for the office of Ordinary Calhoun. In the meantime, Mr. Wiseberg ascertained that his daughter had left home, and he, too, made his way to the ordinary's office. "I want a license, please," announced the young man.

"Who is the lady?" asked the ordinary.

"Miss Wissberg."

"I'm sorry, but I have instructions from the lady's father to issue no such license."

Where there's a will, there's a way. The young people then went to Griffin, accompanied by a number of friends, and were married at the home of Rev. Dr. McDaniel. They returned last evening.

The young man is known as a rising young business man, and his bride is a beautiful and accomplished young lady. The good wishes of scores of friends attend the young couple. THE PICNIC SEASON.

The weather was fine and the enjoyment was perfect.

Thirteen cars carried the happy people to Adairsville, where they were met by a big train of their friends from Chattanooga.

The day was pleasanly spent in ball playing, swinging, dancing, etc. Two bands furnished the music. After a day of rare enjoyment, the party returned to Atlanta at eight o'clock last night.

The Western and Atlantic people are making extensive preparations for their annual picnic, which will come off on Saturday, the 12th, at Walking match.

The Fast Tourses will be a walking match.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia people will picnic at Powder Springs on the 26th. The tickets are being printed for distribution among the railroad men and their friends.

Chronic Coughs and Colds,

And all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion, as it con tains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Rypo phosphites in their fullest form. Is a beautiful creamy Emulsion, palatable as milk, easily digested and can be taken by the most delicate. Please read "I consider Seattle Francisco". "I consider Sout's Emulsion the remedy par excel-lence in Tuberculous and Strumous Affections, to say nothing of ordinary colds and throat troubles."

THE EIGHT HOUR SYSTEM. mittee Meet Last Evening in Mr. Walter Brown's Office.

Watter Brown's Office.

The committee of three, of the police commissioners, to whom was left the consideration of the feasibility of the eight hour system, met last evening in Mr. Walter Brown's office.

The committee consists of Messrs. Brown, Stephens and Brotherton. The police force consists at present of sixty-six men, and this force is divided into two watches, each watch on duty for twelve hours. It has been one of Mr. Brown's pet schemes to inaugurate an eight hour system—that is eight hours on duty and sixteen off. This is the plan in most cities as large as Atlants, but there is a strong opposition to its inauguration here, not only in council but in the board of police commissioners. Council refused to grant an additional appropriation. If the eight hour system is to go into effect, the present force must be divided into three watches, or twenty-two men to the watch. There are four captains, and these will officer two of the watches, while the chief and the sergeant will take care of the third watch.

It is within the power of the police commissioners to put the eight hour system into effect. The three committeemen are unanimous, and one other member of the loard is known to favor it, and has promised to vote for it. Four is a majority of the board, so it seems just now that the long talked about eight hour system is about to go into effect. The board holds its regular meeting next Monday night, and the matter will then be decided definitely. The parolimen want it—every one of them, and the meeting next Monday will be an important one.

THE CAPITAL CITY BANK.

The Meeting of the Directors and Election of Officers Yesterday.

Yesterday the directors of the Capital City Land and Improvement company held a meet ing, and elected the following gentlemen officers for the ensuing year:
President-Mr. W. A. Hemphill.

Vice-President-Mr. David Mayer, Cashier-Mr. Jacob Haas. Teller-Mr. Peter Clark.

Teller—Mr. Peter Clark.

Bookkeeper—Mr. Nestor H. Forbes.

The Capital City bank is now an established institution. From the first day that the doors were thrown open, the growth of this business has been swift and steady, and today it is universally recognized as one of the very best banks in Georgia. There is no safer or sounder bank to be found anywhere.

The directorate is composed of gentlemen of high character and fine business capacity, who enjoy the fullest confidence of the people.

The selection of the above named officers yesterday furnishes additional proof of that wise management which has made the Capital City bank a success. The officers are all solid and thoroughly trained business men, and their reelection to the position they have held since the bank was organized is a guarantee that the bank will continue to grow in character and prosperity.

CHANGE OF OFFICERS

In the Atlanta National Bank Yesterday— Resignations and Promotions.

It was generally understood about the streets resterday morning, that at a meeting of the lirectors of the Atlanta National bank some changes in officers had been made. An investigation showed that the rumors were true. Mr. Paul Romare, who for many years has been the cashier of the bank, goes up higher. He has been made vice president, Mr. Robert Richards resigning that place, but still holding his interest in the institution, in order that Mr. Romare might be

The new cashier, Mr. Charles Currier, is an excellent business man. He is the nephew of Mr. James Swann, the president. DR. PENTECOST.

He Will Soon Come to Atlanta-A Fine Great interest is felt in the prospective visit of Dr. Pentecost to Trinity church. In this connection the following from the Schnectady, N. Y., Union will be read with interest:

The series of gospel meetings under the leadership of Dr. Pentecost and Mr. Stebbins closed last night. The hall was, of course, crowded. Many stood during the entire service, and hundreds were unable to get in. The front part of the hall was reserved for those who have recently become Christians, to whom seven hundred tickets had been distributed. Even a slight inspection of these rersons revealed the fact that Dr. Fentecost's power is greatest among the intelligent unper classes, or rathers among the intelligent upper classes, or rathers among the intelligent upper classes, or what is known as the extreme upper class is seldom remarkable for intelligence. These new Christians were almost without exception fine flooking people, with a degree of earnest refinement pervading all. There were many men in his select circle, and doubtless a large number of the men converts were kept away by business extrences. Dr. Pentacost has a won-Tribute. large number of the men converts were kept away by business exteencies. Dr. Pentacost has a won-derful power over man, and never seems quite iso completely in his element as when he is facing the great Sunday night audiences of men only. One church, out of about a hundred converts, reports for y-eight men.

An ss,000 suit.

An interesting case is pending before Judge Marshali J. Clarke. The sum of $8,000 is involved. The State road is suing the Georgia road for that amount.

In the year 1809 the State road, Georgia road and the South Carolina railroad entered into a contract with the Selma and Dalton road to carry rails from Charleston to Dalton, to be used for the Selma and Dalton railroad. Forty-three thousand tons of iron was shipped and the freight was readily paid up by the State road.

It is now claimed that the rates were raised and that too much was paid. The case has been filed since 1872.

Mr. Harrison's Funeral Today. The funeral of Mr. George Harrison will take place this morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of his son, No. 17 Jenkins street, and the interment will take place in Oakland the interment will take place in Oakland cemetery. The funeral services will be conducted at the residence by Rev. Dr. Morrison. The pallbearers will be Messrs. Nunn, Brown, C. P. Johnson, O. L. Pease, W. H. Roach, John Gatins and Major Ridley. Mr. Harrison was born in Greenville county, South Carolina, sixty-five years ago.

THROUGH THE CITY.

A talkative parrot attracts a large crowd of eager spectators on the Pryor street side of the Kimball house. This intelligently loquacious bird talks very accurately.

Judge Bigby is making the concluding speech in the J. M. Ellis case, city court. It is more than probable that the evidence of this cele-brated case against the city will go to the jury

Mr. H. Tobias and Mr. Gus Hurst, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, left the city yesterday for Cuthbert and Fort Gaines, respectively.

The members of the association of Stationary Engineers did a pretty thing after their entertainment on Tuesday night. The next morning they sent a dray load of cakes, fruits, flowers, etc., to the Orphans' home on Peters street, thereby making glad the hearts of many little ones. This order is in a flourishing condition, having been established one year ago with fourteen members. It now has over fifty active members.

The time of departure of the Richmond and Danville, Georgia, Georgia Pacific, West Point and East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroads will be materially changed on Sunday next. It is said the time will be more convenient for the general passenger.

FIGARO-SALON, 1888. Of all nations of the world, none holds the fine arts in higher esteem than does France, and many of her most prominent artists, like her men of letters, graceful, trilliaut and accomplished, have achieved for themselves a fame whichireflects additional luster upon the land of their nativity.

-THE SALON-the great annual exhibition of paintings and statuary held in the Palaise de l'Industrie, at Paris, under the patronage of the Soliete des Beaux arts, opens in the first week in May and continues during May and June. To this the painters of France, eagerly competing for the favorable judgment of their fellows, gladly contribute their latest and best work. The FIGARO-SALON FOR 1888, comprising illustratious of the most remarkable creations in this forthcoming exhibition will be published in Five Parts, appearing in rapid succession in June, July and August—nearly simultaneously with the holding of the Salon. These illustrations will be fitly accompanied by descriptive and critical essays from the pen of the distinguished art critic, Albert Wolff, and the entire work coming from the successor of Messra. Goupil & Co., will embody such perfections in paper, letter-press and photogravure as must fully satisfy the most fastidious requirements. The five parts will form one complete volume of 100 pages, cloth binding or quarto form, which will be for sale at $5 per copy, or subscribers, not wishing to wait for the completion of the volume, may secure each part of it as fit is published at $1 per copy, but only under a subscription for the whole five parts. A cover for the five parts $1,50.

This magnificent publication will commend itself to persons of cultivated taste, and the edition being limited those who fail to secure it promptly will regret their loss of such a splendid, compact and portable picture gallery. FIGARO-SALON FOR 1888.

Will Hopkins Will Not Die Today.

Gordon Commutes the Deatl Sentence on the Ground of Semi-Idiocy.

William Hopkins, of Raban, will not be hanged tomorrow, as heretofore announced But he will go to the penitentiary for life in stead. Governor Gordon on yesterday kindly stepped in between the young man and the gallows.

The case has some interesting features.

A little over a month ago William Hopkins asked a man to take a drink with him.

man refused, whereupon Hopkins killed him with a rock. He struck him down at a church door in the county of Rabun. About a week after the killing Hopkins was tried and convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged tomorrow, the 11th. temorrow, the 11th.

The young man is hopelessly ignorant. He can neither read nor write and has no idea of a Supreme Being. In addition to all this it terms out that Hopkins is in a state of semi-idear.

It is said that Hopkins comes from a very weak minded family. It is stated that he not only did not realize the solemnity of the dreadful doom pronounced upon him, but actually asked his father, in a flippant manner, "if he would be over to the hanging." when the old gentleman seriously replied, "I'll try and come, if it's too wet to plough." come, if it's too wet to plough."

Here is the governor's order commuting the

Here is the governor's order commuting the sentence:

To the sheriff of Rabun county—Whereas, William Hopkins was at the March term, 1883, of the superior court of Rabun county convicted of murder and sentenced to be hung on the 11th day of May, and, whereas a 10-ition asking that the sentence of the said William Hopkins should be commuted to imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, signed by a large number of the citizens and county officials of Rabun and Habersham counties, and indorsed by the judge who tried him and the solicitor-general who prosecuted him, has been filed in the executive department; and

Whereas, it appears from this retition and letters filed with it that the said William Hopkins is a young man who has had no education and no moral training, and is in fact but a few degrees removed from ishoey, and the public-opinion of the best citizens of said counties seems to be that said William Hopkins did and intend to commit murder, inasmuch as the only weapon he used was a stone. It is ordered, That the sentence of said William Hopkins be and it is hereby commuted to imprisonment for fife in the penitentiary.

Given under my hand and the seal of the executive department, at the casitol, in the city of Atlanta, this the tenth day of May, 1889.

A FEATHER FOR CHIEF JOYNER. Atlanta's Wonderfully Small Percentage of Atlanta's wonderfully small rereshinge of Loss to Insurance.

Atlanta's percentage of loss to insurance is smaller than that of any other city in the United States. In a recent issue of the Times-Democrat, by way of argument for a paid fire department, the following table is given to show the advantage of the system:

Loss. Insurance percent.

If that isn't a feather for Chief Joyner it anwers just as well for most people would think De Lessers is quite confident that his Panama cannal will be completed in three years, other men who are acquainted with the Isthmus, declare that the two oceans can never be united at that point. Well, time will tell. We have long ceased to pronounce any project impossible. For thousands of years people suffered life-long misery from diseases which were supposed to be "visitations of God," but which are now known to be the result of impure blood. The old dectors considered such diseases impossible to cure, and not a few modern ones have shared that opinion; but what can sceptics say in view of the record of Ayer's Sarsaparlla, in the cure of blood diseases, during the past quarter of a century? Instances are innumerable of cases which defied all other treatment, but yielded, in a brief time, to a course of Ayer's Sarsaparlla—a conclusive proof that no other alterative medicine has equal curative powers.

GEORGIA EDITORS.

The Georgia Press Association Leave for Cantes.

The 7:50 passenger on the Western and Atlantic railroad yesterday morning took the Georgia Press association and a number of their friends to Canton.

The press gaug stopped at Marietta, and for about an hour inspected the marble works. At 9:30 they left that point for Canton, where the business meeting of the body was held in the courthouse.

Mr. C. T. Standard, of the Cherokee Advance, made the address of welcome. The convention then went over to Alum springs, and also took a peep at the copper and gold mincs.

Last night a banquet was tendered the news

Last night a banquet was tendered the newspaper men by the people of Canton. At which speeches were made by Mr. George R. Brown, of the Cherokes Advance; Hon. Pat Walsh, Hon. Clarke Howell, Colonel Tyler Peeples, Colonel John H. Seals. A recitation was also made by Mrs. Oton.

Today the association will proceed to Murphy, N. C., where they will be entertained by the board of trade. Here they will witness an Indian war dance by thirty Cherokees in costume. The Indians will also play a game of ball for the entertainment of the editors.

The association will step at Jasper on their return, reaching Atlanta Saturday night.

Peachtree St. Residence Property.

THE PECK PROPERTY, ON PEACHTREE CAIN AND SPRING STREETS.

I will sell upon the premises on MAY 10, 1888, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon,

LOTS

As per plat. Nos. 1 and 2 front on Peachtree st., 50x180; Nos. 3 and 4 front Cain street, 40x109; Nos. 5 and 6 front Spring street, 50x120.

This is decidedly the most valuable residence property in the city of Atlanta. It is on "the" street of Atlanta, Peachtree street; on the west side of the street and fronts east; the highest point on the street; the next lot to the governor's mansion, and possessing the very best of environments, admired by all and inquired after by all seekers of strictly No. 1 gilt edge residence lois.

This class of property can only be bought from estates, living owners will not sell; it is equal to a government gold bond. Such property is just what purchasers want for personal use—homes to keep and live in. The titles are absolutely unquestionable. The purchaser of No. 1 on Peachtree street cun have option of No. 2, and if one party buys both lots, the house can go with the lots; but if different parties buy one and two, the house will be sold separate, to be moved in sixty days. (The house stands on part of both lots.) The same privilege will be given on all the vacant lots.

Buyers are invited to call for plats. Selecta lot and attend the sale: all will be sold. It is just impossible to add anything to the description of this property. Its beauty, worth and value are too self-evident. Terms, ½ cash, 6, 12 and 18 months, 7 per cent.

Auction! Auction! 3 Choice Washington St. Lots!

Monday, May 14th, at 4 o'clock p. m., we will sell on the premises 3 choice lots on Washington street, each 60x120. These are splendid lots; on one of the best streets in the city—the handsomest on the South side. Street cars, good streets, excellent neighborhood, rapidly growing portion of the city. They afford an excellent opportunity for investment.

2 Neat 4-Room Cottages on Little St!

They afford an excellent opportunity for investment.

Adjoining the above, on Little street, are two four-room cottages, with front and rear verandas, all new and in perfect order, on lots 40x150 each, with side alleys. A pleasant and desirable place to live; only a short distance from Georgia avenue, now being so improved by the city. For renting purposes they will pay better than any other property you can purchase.

These are the first lots south of the new Hebrew Orphans' asylum, being erected at a cost of $75,000, and just opposite the Ormond home diace.

The adjoining owners are Julius Brown, Esq., Wellbouse & Bro. and Hirsch Bros., pretty good evidence that there is real value in the surroundings.
